THREE-WAY UNION OF STEEL FIRMS GIVEN APPROVAL

Republic and Corrigan-McKinney To Consolidate; Truscott Agrees To New Financial Structure for Huge Merger.

TOM M. GIRDLER GIVES OUT NEWS

Purchase Will Be Effectuated by Exchange of Common and Prior Preferred in New Company.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 27.—(AP)—

A consolidation of the Republic Steel Corporation and the Corrigan-McKinney Steel Company was approved by directors of both companies today and at the same time it was announced that directors of the Truscott Steel Company had agreed to accept Republic securities in exchange for their Truscott holdings.

The announcement, which was made by Tom M. Girdler, chairman of Republic, and which climaxes several months of negotiations, said that all dividend arrears on Republic's outstanding preferred stock would be eliminated by the proposed changes in Republic's capital structure.

Holders of Republic preferred will be offered the right to obtain in exchange for each share of preferred one-half share of new prior preference stock and two shares of common stock. Republic will deliver to Corrigan-McKinney 815,361,000 of 1-2 per cent. 20-year purchase money bonds, 27,920 shares of new prior preference stock, par $100, and 698,223 shares of common stock, no par, the announcement said.

Truscott Contingency. The Truscott agreement, which will be completed after the acquisition of the Corrigan-McKinney properties, is contingent upon acceptance by 75 per cent of the Truscott stockholders, the announcement said.

For each share of preferred stock of the Truscott company, Republic will offer one-half share of prior preference stock and two shares of Republic common. For each share of Truscott common, Republic will offer four-tenths of a share of Republic common.

Republic, the third largest steel producer in the nation, will have assets of approximately $323,000,000 and a combined steel producing capacity of 6,000,000 tons annually through the consolidation, which is one of the largest undertakings in the steel industry in recent years.

Out Preferred Stock. Girdler's announcement said the proposed changes in the capital structure of Republic will permit it to reduce the amount of preferred stock outstanding, permit $24,000,000 of new financing, the proceeds of which will be used to retire the present outstanding preferred and general mortgage, repay bank loans and provide additional working capital.

A meeting of Republic stockholders has been set for October 30, at which

Johnson Scores Victory Over Richberg and Perkins

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A complete tactical victory for Hugh S. Johnson, leaving him the undisputed boss at NRA, is the result of an intense, personal struggle with Secretary Perkins and Donald Richberg over plans for reorganizing the Blue Eagle agency.

So deeply did the controversy run, it was learned today, that the blustery general stormed out of a White House conference charging efforts to oust him. He later resigned in writing, only to reconsider at the earnest persuasion of President Roosevelt.

All this happened last week, creating a situation that used Mr. Roosevelt's return to Washington after Speaker Rainey's funeral in Illinois, and seek to resolve the quarrel instead of going directly to Hyde Park, as he had planned.

Results. As the situation shaped up today the following results predominated: Johnson will remain as national recovery administrator and very likely will head the board which later is to take charge of NRA.

Richberg will continue for the time being at least as NRA counsel, with an understanding that Johnson is the chief of that agency. Later he probably will be given a key post in the recovery campaign, probably that of head of the national emergency council.

Miss Perkins in the future probably will confine her work more closely to the activities of her own department.

Tones Respected. In other words, President Roosevelt, with a profound admiration for his secretary, Miss Perkins, and a respect not in the least affected by the events of the last week—has worked out a plan which will keep them both in the sensitive roles of the impetuous general.

Richberg was made executive secretary of the emergency council several days ago, retaining his position as NRA counsel. Frank Walker, head of the council, has been away from Washington throughout the summer with Perkins and Richberg, and it is planned that Walker will return in the fall, but it is understood too, that it will be to assume a different post, with Richberg succeeding him at his present assignment. MARSHALL GEORGE SMITH ASSAILED PASSES SUDDENLY AS 'MALCONTENT'

Telephone Executive Suffers Fatal Heart Attack Riding in Auto.

Marshall H. George, 56, assistant district manager of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Co., died of a heart attack Monday morning shortly after he was hurried to Emory University hospital.

Mr. George, apparently in good health, had been attending to his business at the DeKalb county courthouse and was on his way to Atlanta when he was stricken. He was riding in an automobile driven by J. L. Chester, an Atlanta detective who had been attending a trial at the courthouse. They had driven about 100 yards from the courthouse when the fatal attack addressed a remark to Mr. George.

Getting no response, he looked at Mr. George and found him slumped over in his seat. He hurried to Emory University hospital, where Mr. George was pronounced dead soon after arrival.

Mr. George was one of the most

NRA RECLASSIFIES CODED INDUSTRY INTO 22 GROUPS

Reforms in Recovery Set Up Designed for More Efficient, Economical Administration.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(UP)—

The NRA took its first long stride tonight toward obtaining more efficient and economical code administration by dividing American industry into 22 classes in a complete reclassification of code groupings.

The plan was recommended by a specially created economic unit and corresponds closely to the groupings of the census bureau and of the international classification.

At the same time, the NRA disclosed that the eventual expectation is that the 22 sections will fit into 10 or 11 industry divisions.

In a lengthy outline of the new development issued tonight, the NRA said the classification was based on recognition of four basic groups of enterprise:

Basic Groups.

1. Production of basic materials from the soil.

2. Fabrication of what emerges from the first group into finished products.

3. Service—industries which do not produce or fabricate definite products but which render service—ranging from transportation through finance to amusements, professions and such service trades as laundries, restaurants, etc.

4. Distribution of goods, wholesale and retail.

The 22 sections and the fundamental groups to which they belong are:

Producing Industries: Food, textiles, leather and fur, ferrous metals, non-ferrous metals, non-metallic products, fuel, lumber, chemicals, paints and drugs, paper, rubber.

Fabricating Industries: Public utilities, transportation, communication, finance, amusements.

Distributing Trades: Professions and services, wholesale and retail trades.

Division of Industries.

The probable lineup of industry divisions was announced as follows:

1. Food, farm products.

2. Textiles, fur, leather.

3. Basic materials, steel, lumber, building materials, fuels.

4. Chemicals, drugs, paints, paper, rubber.

5. Equipment, machinery, tools, fixtures, vehicles.

6. Manufacturing of use goods—household appliances to musical instruments.

7. Construction in all branches.

8. Public utilities (electric, gas, water), transportation, communication.

9. Finance, graphic arts, amusements.

10. Professional, service trades, all wholesale and retail codes (except food).

Because of the relationship between food codes and the AAA program, the first division is vertical from first manufacture through retail sale, the NRA stated.

4 Killed, 1 Injured In Maryland Crash

RAITIMORE, Aug. 27.—(UP)—Four men were killed and a fifth was injured today when a sedan and a truck crashed together on the Baltimore road near Jacksonville, Md.

The dead, all of whom were riding on the sedan, are Joseph Norris, 35; his son, Milton, 44; Norman Seitz, 19, owner and driver of the sedan; and Harris Tracer, 19, all of White Hall, Md.

The truck was driven by Harry W. Evieler, Baltimore, Pa. He was not injured but his driver, P. Barnhart, was badly cut. Witnesses said the sedan swerved in front of the truck which overturned on top of the smaller machine.

Murder Is Charged In Fatal Car Leap

JACKSON, Ga., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Solicitor Frank Willingham today said the Butts county grand jury had returned an indictment against "Pat" Patterson charging murder in connection with the death of Miss Virginia Walden, who was fatally injured in a leap from his car last Wednesday.

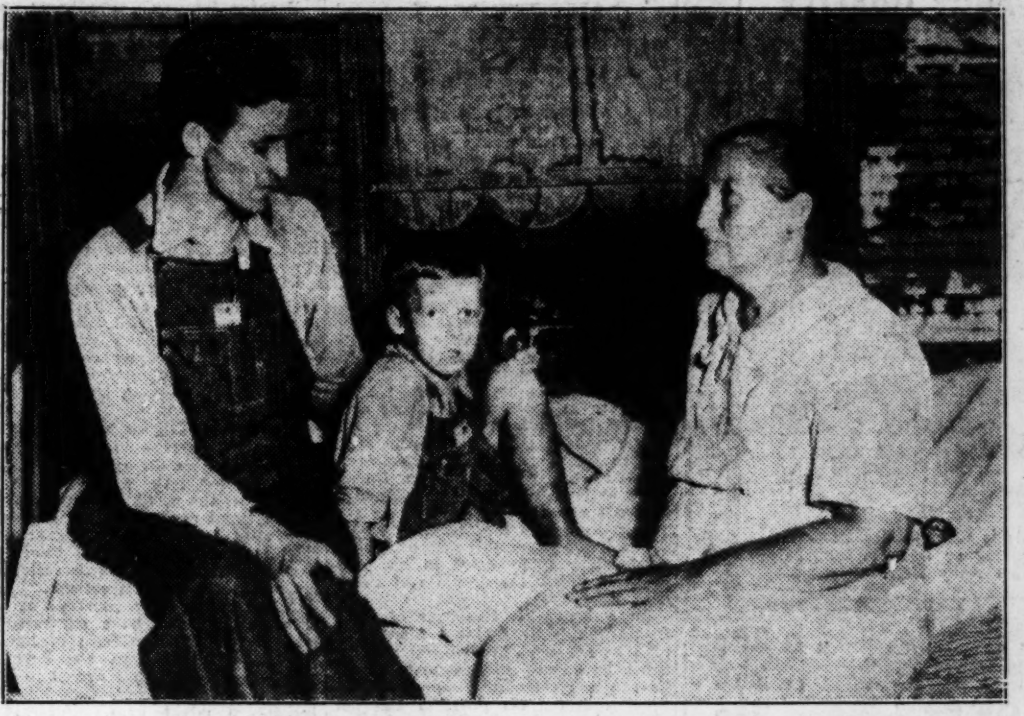

The solicitor said the indictment contained five counts, among other things charging Patterson "inflicted injuries by causing her (Miss Walden) to jump by attempting to hug and kiss her and make amatory advances."

He said the indictment also charged "she was led to believe the assault on her body would be continued," as well as charging she was struck by the car after she jumped.

The 15-year-old Atlanta girl died a few hours after the incident in an Atlanta hospital. Patterson claimed she asked him to let her get out of the car but he jumped before he could stop.

Patterson, 21, of Ola, Ga., is being held in jail here. Solicitor Willingham said he would make every effort to have him tried at the present term of court.

Surgeons Operate on Young Subject Of Faith Healing by Sect in Alabama

By JAMES C. HUTTO.
FORT PAYNE, Ala., Aug. 27.—(UP)—A related operation was performed late today in a desperate effort to save the life of Wallace Doyle Sharp Jr., 8-year-old son of a Holiness family which for two weeks has spurned modern medicine for "faith healing."

In a sparsely furnished, small back bedroom on the second floor of the ramshackle, unpainted Sharp home, Dr. A. W. Rawls, head of the Fort General Hospital at Gadsden, and Dr. W. T. Miller, local physician, operated on the badly infected left leg of the lad.

The doctors cut into the swollen leg and found a large part of the tibia—shinbone—eaten away by the infection. They scraped the bone and drained away from 10 to 12 ounces of pus.

Rawls said the lad was not yet out of danger and it would be about four days yet until he passed the crisis. He gave him a 50-50 chance to recover.

The boy had a peaceful nap at nightfall and later roused to play for a while with some toys spread out on his bed. He appeared cheerful and not to be suffering any more pain. The family refused Dr. Miller's offer to send a nurse to watch him through the night.

The infected bruise on the boy's leg, Dr. Rawls said, has developed into osteomyelitis, the disease that killed Calvin Coolidge Jr.

For two weeks the boy has suffered from the sore leg while his family, backed up by the Rev. James Miller and some 300 fellow "Holinesses," as members of the Holiness cult are called, prayed for his recovery. They insist that the "power of the Holy Ghost" alone can cure human ills and condemn modern medicine.

The boy's father, Doyle Sharp, 29-year-old lumber mill worker, ran off to a friend's home 25 miles across Sand Mountain Friday and hid his son there to keep aroused citizens from forcibly taking him to a Gadsden hospital.

He returned last night when the boy's mother grew anxious to see him and he wanted to "end all this fuss."

RAILROADS SEEK SUBSTANTIAL HIKE

Carriers Claim Insolvency Threatens in Request for 5 to 6 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The first-class railroads of the country, pleading threatened insolvency to many of their number, today asked the interstate commerce commission to authorize rate increases that would raise the nation's freight bill between 5 and 6 per cent.

On the ground of mounting costs of operation, the carriers asked that the increase be applied to specific commodities and classes of freight in varying amounts. It was estimated revenues would result totaling approximately $170,000,000 in 1935.

The petition pointed out that "it is a matter of common knowledge that the carriers are in dire need of additional revenues," and that "the carriers are now confronting them intensities that need."

Pensions Also in Mind.

The increases referred to are $156,000,000 in pay cut due for restoration by April 1 next, and $157,000,000 estimated added cost for materials. While they did not mention it, there is also in mind an item of $80,000,000 for the railroad retirement law which the carriers are fighting in court.

The proposed increases would affect every commodity in almost every section of the country. Even major farm crops which of recent years have been given a preferred status in rate making are listed for increase.

Grain and grain products of all kinds would be charged three cents per 100 pounds more for transportation.

Upton Sinclair's Bid for California Governorship Holds Major Interest.

By the Associated Press.
The drift of political sentiment to or from the "New Deal" will be reflected in the results of today's primary in California, Mississippi and South Carolina.

The nomination of Senator Hiram Johnson, on four California party tickets, has been forecast because of California's democratic gubernatorial nomination dropped out of the race in favor of George Creel, who, among others, is contesting against Upton Sinclair, former socialist and advocate of an "epic" form of government.

National democratic chieftains were alarmed over the apparent Sinclair strength. Privately they expressed concern over the possibility of the party splitting in the November elections should he gain the nomination. They say many democrats would vote for republicans in event of Sinclair's nomination, possibly resulting in the election of a republican governor and national house delegation.

Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam, who succeeded the late Governor James Rolph Jr., and C. C. Young, former governor, are two of the leading contenders for the California republican gubernatorial nomination.

The outcome of a heated race for Mississippi's democratic senatorial nomination, which is tantamount to election, appeared doubtful. Senator Hubert D. Stephens, Representative Ross Collins, former Governor Theodore G. Bilbo and State Senator Frank Harper wound up a bitter campaign with claims of victory.

South Carolina elects a governor and nominates candidates for the national house, as do California and Mississippi also. No senatorial contest is on in South Carolina, however.

SINCLAIR CANDIDACY STIRS CALIFORNIA.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The bid of Upton Sinclair, former socialist, to run for governor of California, was today the subject of much discussion in the city.

WALKOUT THREAT SPREADS TO SILK AND RAYON FIELDS

Both Sides Invited to Peace Discussion; Sloan Says Code Rules, Not Strikes, Must Determine Course of Industry.

ALUMINUM STRIKE UNDER DISCUSSION

One Injured in Clash Between Strikers and Non-union Workers at Macon Cotton Mill.

By the Associated Press.

A ray of hope burst the dark shadow cast by the threatened textile strike over the industrial field yesterday when Lloyd Harrison, chairman of the national labor relations board, announced he had invited members of the Cotton Textile Institute and representatives of the United Textile Workers to meet him Wednesday in an effort to end the strike threat.

Meanwhile officials of the U. T. W. had announced it was "highly possible" that silk, woolen and rayon workers would join the strike.

A meeting of the entire executive council of the United Textile Workers has been set for today. The projected walkouts would affect nearly 800,000 workers, including 500,000 in cotton mills.

Must Stand on Code.

George A. Sloan, chairman of the cotton textile authority, notified Dr. R. W. Brainerd, chairman of the cotton textile national industrial relations board, that the code authority must stand firmly "upon code No. 1."

Striking employees of the Aluminum Company of America and company representatives met in their first joint conference at Washington to seek a basis for ending the walkout.

Vigilantes, secretly organized to heed any call, kept watch over the Scioto marshland near McGuffey, Ohio, scene of the kidnapping and beating of Okey Odell, leader of the striking onion workers.

Vigilantes, composed of non-striking onion weavers, were pledged to retaliate in the event of further violence.

Twenty unions, all of 28 were said to have approved agreements looking toward settlement of the strike in the Anaconda Copper Company's mines and plants in the region of Butte, Montana.

Violence in Macon.

One man was severely cut in a clash between non-union workers and strikers at a Macon Cotton Mills in Macon, Ga. After the battle the plant was shut down. (Details on Page 18).

A clash between strikers and guards at the Riverside colliery of the Peabody Anthracite Mining Company at Eynon, Pa., resulted in the wounding of a picket. A bullet shattered the windshield of the automobile of Sheriff George T. Williams.

Two hundred pickets marched through Chicago's downtown business section, carrying banners charging that the Chicago Motor Coach Company, whose union drivers are on strike, was unfair to organized labor.

LABOR BOARD'S WEIGHT THROWN INTO BREACH.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Throwing the weight of the national labor relations board behind federal efforts to avert a nation-wide textile strike, Chairman Lloyd Garrison tonight sought to have both union men and members of the Cotton Textile Institute sit with his board in a peace conference early Wednesday.

In a telegram to George A. Sloan, chairman of the cotton textile code

Hitler Seeks To Steel Nation Against Winter of Hardship

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Ministerial sacrifice and glorifying "going without." A sort of Spartan patriotism was the keyword for the big drive, prefaced as it has been by oratorical rages on many Nazi fronts.

The lack of raw materials and the facilities with which to buy them were already nibbling fox-like at industrial Germany's vitals as Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler in his address at Coblenz yesterday urged his people to meet suffering with noble patriotism and German defiance.

"The greater the distress," he declared, "the greater will be our defiance and our determination. . . . In spite of everything we will overcome it."

"Under no conditions will we surrender," he said.

Characteristically, the campaign to harden national endurance in its present stage ascribes the seriousness of the economic situation to two causes, neither the fault of Hitler. They are:

1—The blunder of Hitler's predecessors in power.

2—International hostility toward the new Germany.

This latter cry Hitler himself echoes at Coblenz.

"Certain international cliques which believe they can break us down with economic terrorism, boycotts, et cetera," he is responsible, Hitler said. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics, in his address at the opening of the Leipzig mercantile fair yesterday, also emphasized that the populace must be prepared "to face with great sobriety" the economic emergency "which international policy has forced upon us."

Goebbels has sounded similar warnings, but the little minister of propaganda is expected in the future to attempt to envelop suffering in an aura of romance, stressing the sufferings of Germany's great heroes of past centuries and attempting to spread widely the conviction that hardship patriotically borne is more precious than prosperity.

THREE PRIMARIES TO BE RUN TODAY

cialist, for the democratic gubernatorial nomination on an "end property in California" platform, enlivened tonight the closing hours of the state's primary election campaign.

The democratic party, predominant numerically over the republicans in California for the first time in 25 years, was confronted with a variety of future possibilities because of the Sinclair factor. Among these was the possibility of conservative democrats would vote republican this fall if Sinclair is nominated.

Sinclair's program advocates placing the state in business by taking over defunct factories and eliminating the poorer land. His chief opponent, George Creel, Wilsonian democrat, charged Sinclair took President Roosevelt's national program and adopted it to the state.

Denies Socialism.

Creel, war-time director of propaganda, himself promised in his campaign to follow the program of President Roosevelt.

In a book, "I, Governor of California," Sinclair declared his "epic" plan would cost $300,000,000 and defunct businesses and factories would be run as community property.

Sinclair stated his program was not socialist.

The campaign of Sinclair has been paid for through sales of his book and admissions to his political meetings.

The registration book shows 3,062,317 voters.

Many candidates are registered on more than one party ticket. United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson seeking the nomination from four: Republican, democratic, progressive and commonwealth.

Justice Wardell, of San Francisco, long a state democratic leader, also is regarded as a formidable opponent of Creel and Sinclair, and the contest for the republican gubernatorial nomination also is three-sided.

Merriam Seeks Post.

Acting Governor Frank F. Merriam, who as lieutenant governor succeeded James Rolph Jr., upon the latter's death June 2, had as a campaign plank his handling of the recent general strike in San Francisco.

Former Governor C. C. Young, defeated in 1930 by Rolph, emphasized in his campaign the fact that he "left $31,000,000 in the state treasury."

John R. Quinn, former state commander of the American Legion, opposing Merriam and Young, campaigning by pointing out alleged corruption in the building and loan companies in the state.

Raymond L. Haight, Los Angeles, former state corporation commissioner, is positioned as a commonwealth party gubernatorial candidate but also is seeking the republican and democratic nominations. The sole candidate for the socialist nomination is Milton C. Dempster, of San Francisco.

Sam Darcy, of San Francisco, seeks the gubernatorial nomination on the communist party ticket.

Senator Johnson's opponents are Richmond A. Rust, Los Angeles attorney, for the republican nomination; C. A. Henning, and Cary A. Johnson, of San Francisco, for the democratic nomination.

LIQUOR IS FACTOR IN SOUTH CAROLINA

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 27.—(AP)—

Two big issues—what shall be governor and what shall be done about liquor—were on the minds of South Carolinians tonight, the eve of their biennial primary.

There were other problems to be decided, too, such as who will go to congress, who will hold the state offices, but the gubernatorial and liquor campaigns continued to hold the spotlight, just as they did during the just-closed stamping tour of the candidates.

The vote on liquor will be for or against, vote having no legal force except as a guide for the next legislative session. In the last general election, South Carolina voted dry, but as usual only a small percentage of the electorate went to the polls, since general elections mean nothing in this one-party state, where the democratic primaries are the real elections.

All candidates for governor except Olin D. Johnston have expressed a leaning toward some form of liquor regulation rather than bone-dryness, and even Johnston has agreed to sign "any reasonable" regulation bill the legislature might pass. Several of the candidates are openly wet.

Expect High Vote.

Organized groups have waged a determined campaign against any party state, but are not opposed to supporting any individual candidates.

The combination of the liquor question with the always-heated gubernatorial campaign, was expected to bring out more than a quarter of a million voters. Registration totaled 375,000.

Candidates for governor are Cole L. Blease, who has served two terms in the executive mansion in addition to having been United States senator; Wyndham M. Manning, son of the state's war governor; Olin D. Johnston, runner-up two years ago; Tom R. Pearce, Columbia businessman; Mayor L. B. Owens, of Columbia; Lieutenant Governor James O. Sheppard and State Senator C. E. Sloan and H. Kemper Cooke.

For lesser state and district offices there are 45 candidates, while there are 370 candidates for the legislature and several hundred running for county offices. Thomas S. McMillan is the only one of the state's six congressmen who does not face opposition.

The gubernatorial campaign, despite the presence of the fiery Blease, has been one of the least exciting in years. Personalities have been frequent, but definite issues few.

MISSISSIPPI CAMPAIGN: ONE OF PERSONALITIES

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Stirred by last-minute charges, and personalities from which the campaign had been kept free until the closing days, Mississippi voters will turn out in force tomorrow for what may be a near-record vote in the senatorial, congressional and judicial races.

Although there is no method for definitely determining the legal voting strength of the state, reports from scattered key cities indicate that the vote will be heavy in most counties, with the probable exception of Delta counties, where Congressman Will Whittington, of the third district, has no opposition and where there is no judicial contest.

The voters of the state must select one democratic nominee for United States senator, six congressional nominees, 14 circuit judges and three chancery court nominees in addition to county judges in those counties which have a county court.

In number of races second primaries appeared assured, particularly in the congressional races where there are several candidates.

Senatorial Race Is Hot.

The senatorial contest commands most interest with former Governor Theo G. Bilbo, Congressman Ross A. Collins and State Senator Frank Harper, of Hattiesburg, all seeking to displace Senator Hubert D. Stephens, of New Albany, who is a candidate to succeed himself.

In many counties about equal numbers of the three candidates are holding the spotlight; in the fifth district four candidates, including the speaker of the Mississippi house of representatives, Tom Bailey, seek the seat vacated by Congressman Collins; in the sixth district Congressman Will Colmer is opposed by three vigorous campaigners, and in the seventh district Congressman Russell Elzey is actively opposed by State Senator Dan McGehee, Hugh V. Wall, Brookhaven attorney, and Jack Graves, Jackson lawyer.

While estimates of Tuesday's total vote vary widely, all candidates expect more than half of the total registration will be in the totals.

The state's greatest vote was cast in the gubernatorial race in 1931 when 315,000 ballots were counted.

In many counties about one-fourth of the vote has been secured by the poll books this year due to delinquent tax payments. Under a new law allowing specific county taxes to be levied in party primaries, thousands who are ineligible to vote in general elections may vote in Tuesday's primary, and predictions of the total eligible vote thus vary by thousands.

ARTHUR SKINNER, 56, FOUND DEAD IN ROOM

When the maid was unable to unlock the door or arouse the occupant of a room in a hotel at 450 West Washington, the manager, J. H. Skinner, 56, was found dead in the room.

Mr. Skinner was last seen shortly after noon Sunday and it was believed that he had succumbed to a heart attack early in the afternoon. He had been suffering from a heart ailment for several years.

He is survived by two brothers, Dr. Frank S. Skinner, of Marion, Iowa, and George C. Skinner, of Washington, D. C.; and one sister, Mrs. John Hobbs, of Pelham, N. Y.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of Harry P. Wainwright, with the Rev. C. A. Norton officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

TALMADGE SPEAKS OVER WSB TONIGHT

Address Starting at 7 O'Clock Will Review Accomplishments.

Governor Eugene Talmadge will discuss the issues of his campaign for reelection in a 30-minute radio address over station WSB here at 7 o'clock tonight.

The address will begin at 8 o'clock in the Eastern Time Zone of the state. The governor said Monday that he would discuss briefly the important issues of the campaign in addition to making a report to his constituency on the accomplishments of his present administration to date.

Talmadge clubs all over the state will have meetings at which the broadcast will be received. The governor was informed Monday that at least 50 county clubs will hold meetings in the county seat towns and that the various ward clubs in Atlanta will be invited to hear the governor.

The Georgia public service commission Monday as a commission took cognizance of and answered charges of Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville, one of the governor's two opponents for re-election, that the commission had "made a deal" with the railroad which last week accepted an 18 percent cut in freight rates.

Talmadge is quoted as having said in his speech at Albany Saturday that a trade has been made whereby the reduced rates recently ordered by the Georgia public service commission would be revoked and higher ones established soon after the primary.

"He is further quoted as having said in the same speech that the public service commission has agreed not to fix freight rates but to let the roads before the interstate commerce commission."

"For pure mendacity this statement has not been surpassed by any the candidate for governor has made. The utterly hopeless ignorance of this candidate is further manifested by his floundering attempt to discuss the relationship of rates as relates to the interstate commerce commission and state commissions."

"It is admitted that Georgia now enjoys preferential rates, which are the subject matter of complaint filed by the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce against the Georgia public service commission. The commission has already attended two hearings in an effort to have these rates for Georgia shippers lowered."

"Representing the increased level of wages of railway labor and the increased unit prices of materials and supplies, without an increase in the rates of existing freight rates and charges and without a substantial increase in the volume of traffic will so affect the net railway operating income of the railroads of the United States that they will be forced to reduce rates."

Refuse Estimates.

Officials declined to estimate the percentage of increase, asserting that it would vary too much to do so. However, it was pointed out that in 1933 gross operating revenue was $3,065,446,190 and expenses $2,249,319,760 and that for the first six months of 1934 these classifications stood at $1,629,987,100 and $1,212,257,063, respectively.

The Association of Railway Executives asserted in a statement accompanying the petition that "in 1933 railroad operating expenses were only half of what they were in 1929, yet the railroads as a whole failed to make enough money to cover their operating expenses, taxes and interest charges without any allowance for dividends for their stockholders."

Economies Barred.

The railroads also declared they could not make any economies because of restrictions imposed on them. Under the co-ordinator law orders cannot be issued by the federal co-ordinator of transportation which would reduce railroad employment and the carriers are limited as to the number of employees they may drop during a year.

"Petitioners are of the opinion," said the request to the ICC, "that they cannot by increasing savings in view of the various restrictions imposed upon them, effect economies in addition to those heretofore effected that will materially offset the increase in their operating expenses which will result from the increased cost of labor, materials and supply."

To this, the Association of Railway Executives added:

"It is estimated that the schedule of rates submitted to the commission, if approved, will add approximately $170,000,000 a year to the revenues of the carriers, or a little less than 60 per cent of the increase in cost of materials and labor. Additional savings must come from a general improvement in business."

Sanford To Present Talmadge at Athens

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 27.—Interest in the gubernatorial campaign was heightened here today with the announcement that President S. V. Sanford of the University of Georgia, will introduce Governor Eugene Talmadge when the latter delivers a campaign address here Monday, September 10, at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The announcement that Dr. Sanford will introduce the governor was made by W. W. Scott, president of the Clarke County Talmadge Club. Scott also announced that a committee of members of the club has been named to select a place for the governor's address.

Plans are being made for one of the largest crowds in the present campaign. Talmadge is the only candidate for governor who has announced a speaking date for Clarke county.

tion except in the east where there would be no increase. Cotton rates would be raised 10 per cent, with a maximum of four cents a hundred pounds except in the southeast, where rates recently were raised. Tobacco would be assessed an additional 10 per cent, with a minimum of four cents, while live stock of all kinds would be charged 10 per cent more. Coal increases would range from three to 30 cents a ton. Class rates which take in all freight not given specific commodity rates would be raised generally 10 per cent.

"An increase in petitioners' operating expenses of more than $293,000 per annum," said the rate increase request, "representing the increased level of wages of railway labor and the increased unit prices of materials and supplies, without an increase in the rates of existing freight rates and charges and without a substantial increase in the volume of traffic will so affect the net railway operating income of the railroads of the United States that they will be forced to reduce rates."

JOHNSON SCORES DECISIVE VICTORY IN ROW OVER NRA

the breach was closed. He insisted that Johnson take a fortnight's rest and the general left for a Bethany Beach, Del., resort.

From there he will go to Hyde Park, where he and the president will discuss and probably settle the details of the new set-up in NRA. And in it, Johnson will still be the commanding officer.

None of the principals in the controversy felt like discussing it today.

JOHNSON DENIES HE EVER RESIGNED

BETHANY BEACH, Del., Aug. 27.—(AP)—A vigorously expressed assertion that "I have not resigned" was made today by General Douglas C. Johnson, Washington reports of sharp personal strife over reorganization of the NRA.

General Johnson was asked if he had not submitted his resignation as NRA chief in a letter to President Roosevelt last week and reconsidered only upon the earnest insistence of the president. He fired back:

"I have not resigned. That's all I have to say about that."

As to reports he had stormed out of a White House conference charging an NRA reorganization plan submitted by Douglas C. Johnson and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins was aimed at his retirement, he asserted:

"They are without the foundation of fact. There is absolutely no truth in them. I refuse to discuss them further."

The general spent a large part of the day in recreation on the beach. Upon return to his cottage he showed extreme reluctance to discuss official affairs.

"I came here for a rest," he said. "But I can't get any rest. No sooner than I come into sight somebody starts shooting questions at me."

Savannah Woman Aids Break Of Chattanooga Prisoners

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Eleven prisoners captured the Hamilton county jail today, imprisoned all jailers and trustees and escaped under a fusillade of shots from officers.

Six of the 11 were recaptured.

Lige Cagle, charged with highway robbery, admitted to Chief Deputy Sheriff W. G. Sears and reporters that he led the break. A girl in Savannah, Ga., Cagle said, sent him $30 worth of backwash with which he and two cellmates severed a hole in a lock box.

The prisoners went first into the jail office and captured James J. Carter and several trustees. Jack Youngblood, who was captured along with Bob Kerr and Cagle, said they raided the kitchen before leaving.

Trying to escape in an automobile, he said the girl had sent, Cagle was captured near the jail. He was shot through the leg. The girl, he declared, "I cut the hole."

Cagle said he and two other prisoners in the same cell almost completed sawing the hole in a lockbox in the main corridor, last Tuesday. But when the door of the hole was slammed shut Sunday, he continued the metal piece fell out and there was nothing to do but make the break before the plot was discovered.

None of the prisoners had a pistol so far as he knew, Cagle said.

Those who escaped, in addition to Cagle, Youngblood and Kerr, were listed as William Edward Boyd, Jack Jones, Joe Keith, Taft Laughridge, James Trousdale, John Merriam, Elbert Bishop and Chris Williams.

Merriam, Bishop and Keith were also recaptured.

COMMITTEES CALLED TO STUDY TVA POWER

Charter Revision and Electric Lights Groups Will Meet Friday Afternoon.

Alderman J. Charlie Murphy, chairman of council's charter revision committee and a candidate for mayor, Monday issued a call for a joint meeting of his committee and the electric lights committee of council for 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the city hall to study what steps should be taken to secure TVA power for Atlanta.

Council at its last session sent a report formulated by Assistant City Attorney Jack C. Savage to the joint consideration of the two committees, and also a request that necessary charter amendments be recommended to place Atlanta in a position to seek TVA power. A proposed constitutional amendment, permitting cities to issue bonds to procure public utilities with a stipulation that the acquired properties themselves shall stand good for the bonds and that the amount of the bonds shall not be charged against the normal bonded indebtedness which a city is entitled to incur under the state constitution, also is before the committee.

Another resolution, seeking $1,000 to pay engineer for a survey of Atlanta with a view of obtaining an estimate as to the cost of a distributing system is pending before the finance committee.

Alderman J. Sid Tiller is chairman of the electric lights committee.

BEER LEVY QUESTION IS STILL UNSETTLED

The question of whether retail beer and liquor dealers in dry Georgia must pay a $1,000 excise tax to the federal government remains unsettled Monday as Collector of Internal Revenue W. E. Page announced he had received no instructions from Washington to collect the tax.

There are 332 retail liquor and 9,434 retail beer dealers in Georgia, the collector said.

'Trickery' Charge in Talmadge Indorsement Termed 'Falsehood' by Rail Group Official

Governor Talmadge Monday received a 15-pound black bass from a group of his supporters among railroad workers, who, in addition to giving him the fish, promised him that he would get a large majority of railroad workers at the September 12 primary. Those in the above group are, left to right, J. H. Wilson, Georgia railroad; W. W. Smith, Georgia railroad; D. E. Breedlove, Georgia railroad; E. J. Lindsey, Georgia railroad; A. A. Leister, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway, and G. R. Sayre, of the Georgia railroad, who caught the big fish in San Savilla lake, in south Georgia. Staff photo by George Cornett.

R. S. Elrod, secretary of the co-operative legislative committee of the "Big Four" railroad brotherhoods, Monday issued a statement charging that accusations of trickery in connection with the committee's indorsement of Governor Talmadge are "malicious falsehoods," and at the same time revealed that the Association of Railroad Employers, whose officials last week indorsed Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville, one of the governor's two opponents, is not recognized by the Railway Labor Executives Association, a national unit which supervises the activities of all railroad labor unions.

Mr. Elrod in his statement detailed how the indorsement of Judge Pittman was revoked by his committee and how the committee then voted almost unanimously to approve the candidacy of Governor Talmadge for reelection.

Concerning the action of officials of the Association of Railroad Employers, composed almost entirely of clerical workers, Mr. Elrod revealed the following telegram from George M. Harrison, of Cincinnati, acting chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association:

"The Railway Labor Executives' Association does not recognize the Association of Railroad Employers."

Workers' call on Talmadge. Governor Talmadge Monday received further assurance of support from railroad workers when a number called upon him and presented him a 15-pound black bass as a token of their esteem for him.

The presentation was made by G. R. Sayre, who caught the fish, and in giving it to the governor he assured him that he would receive the support of a large majority of railroad labor. In the group with Mr. Sayre was A. A. Leister, vice president of the Atlanta lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, whose president, G. T. Finley, had attacked the indorsement of Governor Talmadge.

Reply to Accusations. Secretary Elrod's reply to the accusations against his committee follows: "The statement of G. T. Finley, president of the Atlanta Lodge No. 720, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, charging trickery in the action of the co-operative committee in indorsing Governor Talmadge for governor is a tissue of malicious falsehoods from end to end.

"Mr. Finley's statement is an obvious attempt to mislead the public and the political motives behind it are proved by the fact that it remained in the possession of the editor of an evening newspaper nearly a week before it was published and was taken to the other newspapers not by Mr. Finley, but by persons who explained they were 'disinterested' parties.

"I have the records at hand to prove that Mr. Finley was either grossly misinformed when he made his statement or deliberately misstated the facts.

"In the first place Mr. Finley said he has every reason to believe that Judge Pittman's answer to a questionaire sent him by the committee was received by me and withheld. It was Judge Pittman's failure to answer our questions that led to the committee's

MOTORISTS URGED TO LEARN LAWS, AVOID ACCIDENTS

Characterizing the automobile "an instrument of death" when driven by a person not thoroughly familiar with all traffic laws, Councilman Howard Haire, of the ninth ward, Monday night in a talk on traffic and results so far obtained by the government-sponsored Atlanta traffic survey, proposed a house cleaning of present city and state traffic laws and re-enactment of laws most practical to present-day needs.

Councilman Haire said that the survey revealed that motorists speed at 40 to 60 miles an hour on main traffic arteries and show a total disregard for boulevard stop signs and traffic lights. He pointed to one report which stated that a man sped over a red light at Lakewood and Stewart avenues at 92 miles an hour. This man, he said, was a potential murderer.

The survey reveals that practically all accidents in which school children are involved are the result of the children riding bicycles, skating or because the children dart into the street from behind parked automobiles. The first five months of the year, Councilman Haire said, show 467 recorded accidents involving school children injured by automobiles, "which is a fact that should be given serious consideration by every Atlanta motorist and parent."

MRS. FRANK WELDON TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Frank Weldon, well known Atlanta woman who died Sunday at a local hospital following an illness of five years, will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill. Dr. M. Ashby Jones will officiate and burial will be in West View cemetery.

Mrs. Weldon, who at one time was night city editor of The Constitution, was a member of the Atlanta Woman's Club and the Methodist church. Mrs. Weldon was a native of Oxford, Ga., and before her marriage was Jeanne Wright, daughter of the late Senator Frances Robinson and Franklin Wright, of Covington. She was a sister of the late Boykin Wright, of Augusta, former state attorney-general, and the late Robert F. Wright, of Elberton, who for a number of years was assistant commissioner of the Georgia department of agriculture.

WILLICAN SCORES SIMS AT MEETING

By HERMAN D. HANCOCK.
Political oratory boomed Monday night at two meetings at which Fulton county candidates spoke, and Roy LeCraw, one of the three majority candidates, delivered an address to a war veterans' organization.

Alderman J. Everett Millican, opposing Senator Walter A. Sims, of the thirty-fifth state district, held a rally at the East Point auditorium, while Sims and other candidates who were not present at East Point, attended a gathering at Buckhead sponsored by J. V. Poole, opposing Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton county superior court.

Alderman J. Charles Murphy, seeking the majority nomination, will speak at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Georgia Avenue school, and LeCraw will speak at 7:30 Friday night at the Moreland school at the intersection of Euclid and Austin avenues.

Millican announced Monday night he will speak at 7:45 o'clock Wednesday night at the Slater school, third ward; Highland school, ninth ward, at the same time Friday night; at Palmetto at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and at Fairburn at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The state senatorial race in which Sims and Millican are engaged continued to hold the center of the political stage in Fulton county.

Millican Annals Sims.
Millican Monday night leveled a stinging fire at Sims in "answering" Sims' charges against his record as alderman of the city.

Sims continued his demands that Millican prove as special attorney as he said he would do.

In addition, Sims told his audience that the only issue in this race "is whether you want to build a greater Georgia or a greater Gulf Refining Company."

Millican denied emphatically that the Gulf Refining Company, by which he is employed, "ever contributed a single dime to any of the campaigns I have run in this county, and certainly has not to this one."

"The charge that my company made a $25,000 contribution to this campaign is an insult to the intelligence of the voters of Fulton county," he asserted. "Mr. Sims knows he was not telling the truth when he made that statement. I have in my hand, however, a sworn statement Sims filed with the clerk of the court in Fulton county following his race in 1932. It shows that 66 2-3 per cent of all the money contributed to that campaign was by oil company executives."

"I got out of the city council only the oil business to which my company was entitled," said Millican, reading records at this point. "The only thing Sims did as mayor of Atlanta was to try for four years to fire Chief of Police James L. Beavers, and failed, and to increase tax assessments $78,000,000."

"If I am sent to the senate I will attempt with all the force at my command to abolish the county unit system of nominating state officials and put it on a popular vote basis. I will favor state drivers' license law, acquisition and maintenance by the state of all state roads traversing Atlanta and Fulton county, confirmation of the $3 automobile license law, exemption of home owners up to $2,500 on their homes and other measures."

A clash between William B. Hartfield, Fulton representative, and Phil McDuffie, one of his opponents, marked the Millican meeting.

McDuffie accused Hartfield of "double-crossing" certain interests and the Gulf Refining Company, by which he is employed, "for spending large sums of money to attack me; in fact, they are so large that I can not afford out of the $400 the job pays, to spend $6,000 to answer them in the same media." Will H. McLaran, third entrant, also spoke but refrained from entering into the controversy.

Tom C. Morris, seeking the post vacated through the death of the late George A. Eckford, demanded repeal of the state prohibition law and "return of local option to Atlanta; if they don't do it at the next session of the legislature, Atlanta will license it as it did beer anyway, and the state needs the revenue."

W. R. Bentley, seeking the post vacated by Luther Still, also made a bid for votes.

"Pushes New Deal."
LeCraw continued to push his new deal proposal at a meeting of the "Batter Association" held at the Chamber of Commerce. He predicted that the people of Atlanta want a change, asserted this is the day of the young man, and that he is the logical choice as it did beer anyway, and the state needs the revenue."

Georgia Baby Vies at World's Fair

VeVe Wilhoit, 1680 Johnson road, Atlanta, who was adjudged Georgia's most beautiful baby, now is one of the 49 finalists who have their pictures on display at the Sears-Roebuck building at the Century of Progress in Chicago. Visitors to the fair are each allowed one vote for their choice. Sears, sponsors of the contest, received more than 114,000 entries from all parts of the country. A total of $40,000 in prizes will be awarded. Winners will be announced about October 5.

RACE-NAGS.
All over Georgia, wherever sandy spots are to be found exposed to the direct rays of the sun, there will be found the race-nag, or sand skelter, or furrow-jumper, or the six-striped racer-racer. Take your choice of names. Oh, yes, there is one I overlooked—streak-field, which is about the best of the colloquial crop. These little animals are long, thin, and dull colored at a distance. The ground color is grey-green, with a faint suffusion of blue on the under side. There are six yellow stripes that run down the back to the tail, serving to accentuate the stream-line appearance of the animal. These common names all refer to speed as being one of the dominant traits of the species and quite correctly. I have worn myself out trying to catch them alive with a noose, cleverly hidden. I thought, in matted grass, but with no results whatever.

Shall I tell you how Oliver Allen solved the problem? Oliver collected a lot of tomato tins, cut out one end, and buried the tin halfway in the sand on its long dimension. Then he skipped merrily through the field, frightening lizards in every direction. Returning to the cans, he placed his hand over the opening and extracted a live, kicking reptile from nine out of ten of his traps. Oliver Allen, my admiration knows no bounds. You have the making of a real herpetologist. Oliver based his idea on the fact that the animal heads for shelter when frightened, which proved a firm foundation indeed.

Burt recently revised the genus to which the race-nags (Okefenokee name) belong, but his data were sadly

GIRL BEATEN, KNIFED; TWO YOUTHS ARRESTED

Miss Betty Hendry, 21, Treated for Bruises, Two Black Eyes, Cut on Leg.

Miss Betty Hendry, 21, of 458 Washington street, S. W., was treated at Grady hospital Monday for severe bruises about the head, two black eyes and a knife wound in her left leg, all inflicted, she told Hospital Patrolman H. G. Hightower, by a jealous boy friend, Tom Johnson, of 447 Pryor street, S. W., who was arrested by police and charged with assault.

She told police that Johnson came to her home early Monday and forced her into an automobile driven by J. O. Padgett, of 417 1-2 McDonough road, who also was arrested and charged with operating an automobile while intoxicated. The two men took her out on a lonely road where Johnson, she said, beat her with his fists and stabbed her in the leg. She told police that Padgett remained in the car and told Johnson when cars were approaching so he could cease beating her while the cars passed. Then she said, Padgett would tell Johnson to go ahead when the road was clear.

Johnson was infuriated, she said, because she had a date Sunday night with a young man to whom Johnson objected.

Johnson and Padgett were arrested at Pryor and Alice streets by Radio Patrolmen J. B. Harper and C. W. Mauldin a short time after Miss Hendry was received at the hospital. She was taken to her home Monday afternoon in an ambulance. Both men are at liberty after making bonds of $200 each.

If you feel low-

don't be discouraged—remember, loss of strength... sleeplessness... nervousness... paleness... lack of appetite... and general run-down condition quite often may be traced directly to low blood strength—that is, the red corpuscles and vital oxygen-carrying hemo-globin of the blood are below normal.

S.S.S. is the great, scientifically-tested medicine for restoring this blood content. Its benefits are progressive... accumulative... and enduring. By all means try it for better health and more happiness. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon enjoy again the satisfaction of appetizing food... sound sleep... and renewed strength.

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

again we urge you ANY CAR TOO EXPENSIVELY

You experienced car buyers know how well it pays to look around, drive several makes of cars and compare before you sign an order.

Yet even you, if you aren't watchful, may find yourself lured by "super-salesmanship" into a buy that you may regret. You may find that, by looking a little farther, you could have bought a good deal more for the same money.

That's why Hudson and Terraplane dealers say to you: "Don't buy any car too hurriedly." We want you to be sure you're right because then you're sure to be satisfied. And that's why the thousands of buyers of this year's Hudsons and Terraplanes are the most enthusiastic group of owners in Hudson's entire history. Can we prove that? Ask any one of them! They looked before they bought.

We will gladly give you facts about Hudson and Terraplane Performance. We can show you the longest list of official AAA records held by any cars. Then you drive and judge for yourself. Ruggedness? Economy? Long life? You can see sworn affidavits of owners, and talk to as many as you like. Get facts like these, then get them about other cars—if you can.

Come in and let us help you get the facts you need before you decide.

BAR RAPS ENTRY OF U.S. INTO TRADE

Lawyers Find Danger in Federal Utilities and States' Rights Slash.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 27.—Government competition in the utilities field and asserted government encroachment on states' rights were assailed today in sectional meetings which preceded opening of the American Bar Association's annual convention.

The association's general sessions start tomorrow, but preliminary meetings transacted a mass of business of a technical nature and heard speakers express on numerous public questions.

William A. Schneider, attorney-general of Pennsylvania and republican candidate for governor, urged the states to "fight for their rights and protect themselves" from "federal encroachments of state sovereignty."

Schneider is president of the national association of attorneys-general, which he addressed.

Henry G. Wells, of Boston, president of the meetings on public utility law, averred the government is entering the electric business in competition with existing companies, and creating unfair competition.

In another conference, Thomas W. R. Parsons, assistant commissioner of British Columbia police, proposed that the United States adopt the Canadian system of provincial police in each state, with some form of national police to assist in tracking down criminals.

He advocated a single national criminal law under which a warrant would be valid in any part of the country.

Parsons advanced a plan under which regional police training schools, operated by the federal government, would be established. Each state would send its officers there for instruction.

Attorney-General Schneider expressed the opinion that if the states "acquiesce in the increasing encroachments of the federal government upon state sovereignty, they will be long in time there will be no state rights remaining for which to fight; perhaps no states."

"There is scarcely a single field of taxation which has not been invaded by the federal government," he said.

Wells told the public utility law section that the government "attempts to force the utilities industry into compliance with code provisions which it does not live up to itself."

MRS. RASON DOBBS, 82, PASSES AT HOME HERE

Mrs. Rason Dobbs, 82, member of a widely known Georgia family and mother of several prominent Atlantans, died Monday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. B. F. Cameron, at 879 Clifton road, N. E., following an illness of 10 days.

Active in church work, she was a member of the Druid Hills Presbyterian church where she attended regularly until stricken ill less than two weeks ago.

She was the mother of 10 children, seven of them now living. Her son, R. H. Dobbs Sr., was nationally known as an insurance executive. He died last year. Her husband, Rason Dobbs, was a pioneer businessman and occupied a conspicuous place in the business in the county at the time of his death 10 years ago.

She is survived by Mrs. Cameron and another daughter, Mrs. John N. McEachern, prominent in southern Methodism, and by five sons, O. R. Dobbs, former mayor of Athens, Ga.; C. M. Dobbs, well-known attorney of Marietta; H. T. Dobbs, vice president of the Industrial Life and Health Insurance Company; A. Q. Dobbs, also an executive of the same company, both of Atlanta, and W. F. Dobbs, of Macon, Ga.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the McEachern Memorial Methodist church, in Cobb county, with the Rev. Wade Boggs officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard. The following grandsons will act as pallbearers: J. N. McEachern; J. T. O. C. M. D. and C. M. Dobbs Jr., and H. T. Dobbs Jr., O. R. Dobbs Jr., and R. H. Dobbs Jr. H. M. Patterson and Son will be in charge and the body will be at Spring Hill until 9 o'clock this morning and will lie in state at the church between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Youth Badly Injured In Milk Truck Crash

J. D. Johnson, 18, of Second avenue, in East Lake, was seriously injured and his brother, Howard, 14, slightly hurt early Monday morning when the milk truck they were driving crashed into a water plug and two trees, at South Boulevard and Fenwick street.

The elder of the two brothers was admitted to Grady hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. His condition Monday night was reported as "fair." The younger brother was treated for cuts and bruises and dismissed.

James Moore, 5-year-old son of J. A. Moore, of Flat Shoals avenue, who was struck by an automobile Sunday, and suffered fractures of both legs and a head injury, was reported to be in a serious condition at Grady hospital Monday night. Mrs. Jessie Mae Thomas, 23, of Gainesville, Fla., who suffered a fractured vertebrae Sunday when the car in which she was riding struck a hole in the pavement, was reported to be in a "fair" condition at Grady Monday night.

80 HILLSIDE CHILDREN ENJOY JAYCEE OUTING

Eighty children from Hillside Cottages, guests of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at an outing and watermelon cutting at Grant park Saturday afternoon, are wishing that the junior chamber would make it an annual event.

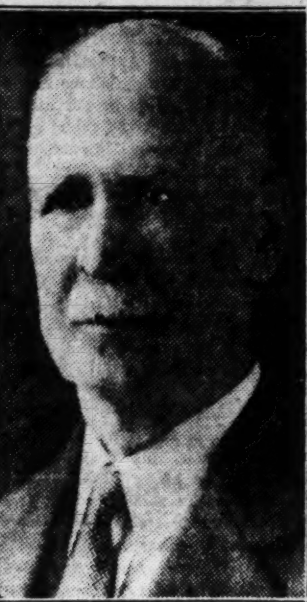

The children sang songs accompanied on the accordion by Johnny McKay, Georgia Tech sophomore; they fed Coca-Cola, the elephant, peanuts and popcorn and fed the spotted deer. Jack Warner supplied the watermelons and arranged the party.

EIGHT HELD IN KILLING OF 2 ROVING SALESMEN

CLINTON, Tenn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Eight men were in custody here today in connection with the slaying of T. A. Lytle, 70, and J. M. Gordy, 50, in what Anderson county officers said they believed to be a robbery attempt.

The men, itinerant patent medicine salesmen of Knoxville, Tenn., were killed Saturday night in the mountains of the New River section near here.

Observes Anniversary

A. C. Miller Sr., president and founder of A. C. Miller & Co. design and manufacturers of auto truck bodies and distributors of motor truck equipment, who Monday celebrated their 45th anniversary. The business has been operated since 1889, when Mr. Miller founded it as a maker of fine carriages.

P. O. CLERK UNDER BOND FOR THEFT OF LETTERS

Julius Henry Smith, postal clerk in the new postoffice building, was ordered held in $2,000 bail Monday by United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith on a charge of stealing money from letters.

Smith signed a written confession, in which he admitted taking three letters from the mail which he suspected contained money. This was early Sunday as he left work, he said. He laid the letters on a desk near the window, and, as he went out, reached back through the window and took them out. Waiting inspectors nabbed him.

Smith, who is 41, married, and the father of two children, said to be one of the best clerks in the postoffice, said he began taking money from letters three months ago, and took about $3 in all. He was in debt, he added, as an explanation.

Cure for Leprosy Believed Discovered

SAIGON, French Indo-China, Aug. 27.—(AP)—New hope was held out tonight to the world's "untouchables," sufferers from the dread disease of leprosy.

A score of years devoted to study of the plague culminated today in Dr. Georges Hippolyte Montel's announcement at Saigon hospital here that he had succeeded, through intravenous injections of methylene blue solutions, in converting contagious into non-contagious cases.

The noted colonial health officer said his method would be tried out in all provinces of Cochinchina. Through its use in connection with chaulmugra oil, he added, he hoped to obtain definite results.

The general condition of lepers submitted to his treatments improved, Dr. Montel said. Their ulcerations and their leprosy lesions faded.

Navy Will Build 24 Ships in 1936

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Apparently taking a cue from President Roosevelt, the navy general board has approved a 24-ship construction program for the 1936 fiscal year.

It would include a 14,500-ton aircraft carrier, two light cruisers, three destroyer leaders, 12 destroyers and six submarines.

Calling for five more vessels than were included originally in the 1936 operating plan, the program would leave only 36 more destroyers and 18 submarines to be built to lift the navy to the strength permitted by the London naval treaty.

CITRUS INSPECTION TO BEGIN SATURDAY

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Florida's golden harvest of citrus—oranges, grapefruit and tangerines—is beginning its journey to market, and the department of agriculture today announced its annual citrus inspection service would be inaugurated next Saturday.

The inspection service, which will continue until December 1, will be clamped down on immature oranges and tangerines, which do not meet the state's maturity tests, to prevent their shipment. Shipment of oranges and tangerines which have been treated with arsenic sprays also will be prohibited, but this will not be extended to grapefruit, the department said.

F. J. COOLEGE & SONS TO OPEN NEW STORE

A new store featuring wall paper and auto glass replacement departments for the convenience of customers, will be opened by F. J. Coolege & Sons this morning at 239 Peachtree street.

Redecorated throughout, the store is one of the most modern and effective.

W. L. ALEXANDER.

Five of the nine units operated by F. J. Coolege & Sons. The windows were redecorated by Mrs. Mary Miller, well-known interior decorator. Coolege paints will also be carried by the store. A feature will be the roomy parking space provided for customers.

The new store is part of the general expansion that F. J. Coolege & Sons has experienced since organized in 1879. H. N. Coolege is president of the firm, which was founded by his father, F. J. Coolege Jr. is also connected in the business. W. L. Alexander, whose experience with the firm has covered approximately 10 years, has been appointed manager of the new store. Mr. Alexander is particularly versed in wall paper styles and trends, and is an authority on such subjects.

Through the national housing act, making it possible for owners to have repairs made on time-payment, the new store, it is pointed out, is expected to fill an urgent need for home owners who have delayed having certain repairs and work done that they have long wanted or needed.

Bimini Will Get Liquor From U. S.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 27.—(AP)—British Bimini, the island from which in prohibition days hundreds of thousands of cases of liquor were dispatched to the United States, is to receive a reciprocal shipment of intoxicants.

Criminal Court Judge E. C. Collins today ordered release of two men arrested here last week and charged with illegal possession and return of their truck load of Maryland liquor valued at wholesale at $4,300.

Federal agents tonight were reported to be keeping the truck load of liquor, illicit in Florida, under observation until it is aboard ship. When seized by deputies sheriff, the truck was headed for Miami Beach.

The men, employees of a trucking company, claimed they were moving the load from Baltimore to Miami, where the 408 cases would be transhipped for Miami, and the court ruled the shipment in legal movement through dry Florida.

BIOLOGY SAVANT CALLS LINDBERGH BRILLIANT PUPIL

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The newspaper Le Jour said today that Dr. Alexis Carrell, of the scientific staff of the Rockefeller Institute, in conversations with friends had pictured Colonel Charles Lindbergh as a brilliant student of biology.

Dr. Carrell is quoted as saying: "The whole world knows and admires the first man who flew the Atlantic alone. You know his extreme modesty and what I am telling you about him nobody suspects in America. He follows my course assiduously and has become my best assistant in biology. The name he will leave in that science will be as illustrious as that in aviation."

Efforts to reach Dr. Carrell in Paris were fruitless.

At the Rockefeller Institute, in New York, it was said that the institute's policy forbade giving out any information on Colonel Lindbergh's work there.

Later, said Saunders, the doctor claimed he met the officer who buried the gold and was offered one-third of the money to go after it, but refused because the officer wanted to restore the kaiser to his throne, and the doctor "had broken with the kaiser."

Later, however, said Saunders, the doctor purportedly reached a 50-50 agreement with the officer, located the

SAUNDERS IDENTIFIES ALLEGED SWINDLER

Says He Was 'Taken In' by Story of Buried Treasure.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Clarence Saunders, described by some as a "wizard" salesman of groceries and pioneer operator of self-service chain stores, today took off his hat to a man he described as a super-salesman.

This man, identifying himself as Dr. Arngaard Karl Graves, 58, former German secret service agent, author of internationally known books on purported inner secrets of governments, was pointed out by Saunders today as the stranger who obtained $1,500 of his money for use in a trip to a "treasure island" to unearth $3,000,000 in hidden gold.

"He sold me, all right," said Saunders, as the man walked out of Inspector Will T. Griffin's office where he was questioned.

"They are going to give me a bath," said the man to Saunders. "I wish you would buy me some clean linen, Mr. Saunders. Some underwear, socks, and so on."

"I'll do that," said Saunders. "I am sorry about this, but you won't talk." As Graves was led away, he remarked, "I suppose I had better add that linen to the $1,500."

The man was arrested at Port Arthur, Texas, on a warrant signed by Saunders, charging larceny by trick, scheme and device.

"I have never swindled anyone," he said. "I was in the German secret service 20 years. I never had anything like this happen to me."

Saunders said the "super-salesman" told him that during the war, the German cruiser, Emden, was being closed in on by allied troops and that the commander put $3,000,000 in gold she carried aboard a captured schooner.

An officer and a non-commissioned officer, according to the story, hid the money on the coast of Haiti in teakwood boxes bound with iron.

Later, said Saunders, the doctor claimed he met the officer who buried the gold and was offered one-third of the money to go after it, but refused because the officer wanted to restore the kaiser to his throne, and the doctor "had broken with the kaiser."

Later, however, said Saunders, the doctor purportedly reached a 50-50 agreement with the officer, located the

'Time' Seeks Dismissal Of Dall's Libel Suit

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—A motion by Time, weekly magazine, to dismiss a $250,000 libel suit by Curtis B. Dall, former son-in-law of president Roosevelt, was set today for argument September 6.

Dall's complaint, which has been served on the magazine, but not yet filed in supreme court, charges that the magazine's account of the suicide of Enzo de Bonzes, son-in-law of Premier Gaston Doumergue, of France.

The magazine compared this occurrence to the situation that would arise if Dall should kill himself. The complaint alleges that the article gave the impression he had done so.

COUNTY TO RENOVATE 3 FLOORS OF ANNEX

Prohibitive estimates on the cost of remodeling the courthouse annex at Pryor and Mitchell streets have resulted in the abandonment for the present of tentative plans to renovate the building throughout, it was announced Monday by George F. Longino, chairman of the board of county commissioners. Longino said that architects have been instructed to draw plans for remodeling of three of the five floors only, as it is thought that much space will be sufficient to take care of the present courthouse overflow.

Mr. Longino said that suggested plans for resurfacing the exterior of the building and remodeling the entire five floors call for an expenditure of $150,000, whereas the commission has decided upon a maximum of $50,000 for the work at the present time.

PENNSYLVANIA RAID NETS BANDITS $3,000

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Two robbers held up the First National bank at Three Springs today, intimidated the cashier and other employees with revolvers and escaped with $3,000 in cash.

treasure, dug up a box of it, and left Haiti with $125,000 of the money. Having lost his last $10,000 in a business venture in New York after other failures, he was in need of funds to return to Haiti.

He had papers, important looking credentials or every nature, said Saunders, and "he sold me, all right."

"My son, Lee, went with him to New Orleans to test a diving suit supposed to be used in the treasure hunt, and the doctor slipped away in New Orleans with the $1,500."

U. S. LIKELY TO SCRAP HOG CONTROL SYSTEM

Indirect Control of Livestock Through Grain Regulation Is Expected.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Indirect control of live stock production through grain crop regulation—involving the scrapping of the hog control plan—is regarded by officials as the likely future course of the farm administration's program.

Abandonment of the hog control plan—linked with corn reduction in this year's program—already has been proposed to Secretary Wallace by a committee of the National Grange.

It probably would also mean the grouping of all basic feed crops under a single contract rather than treating each of them separately. The wheat program, already announced as calling for a 10 per cent reduction in the base acreage, might also be included with other grains, although wheat is only a minor fact as live stock feed.

Farm administration officials have indicated strongly that some change of this nature is in the offing, pointing out that the estimated supply of corn for feed next year will be considerably below normal and that hog production must necessarily follow in ratio to available feed supply.

The extreme shortage of hay, pasture and other rough feed dictates a similar reduction in the case of cattle and sheep.

Cut living expenses with these 3 TVA MODEL APPLIANCES

Only in ELECTRIC refrigeration, ELECTRIC cooking, and ELECTRIC water heating can you enjoy the many conveniences of completely modern service. The 3 TVA model appliances, shown here, bring you these essential services at less cost than old-fashioned methods. They more than pay their keep!

NOW more than ever, you want fullest value for every dollar you invest. That's what you get when you buy any of these 3 TVA model electric appliances—Kelvinator Refrigerator, Hotpoint Range and Water Heater. Not only the appliances—their prices and terms—but also the cost of the electricity to run them are approved by an agency of the United States Government. That's assurance of high quality and low operating cost!

These appliances protect your income. Actually, they will save you many extra dollars. Electric rates are now so low that there is just as great economy in electric cooking and water heating as in electric refrigeration.

Think of the savings in electric refrigeration: savings from food spoilage, food wastage, savings through buying in larger quantities, savings over ordinary refrigeration costs . . . these are important items. They will more than meet the monthly payments of only $2.57 for your refrigerator. And so it goes; each of these appliances helps pay for the others.

When you buy this equipment, you are investing in appliances that are not only MODERN this year, but next! Buy one at a time if you must, but all three if you possibly can! Modernize your kitchen! Wait no longer!

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 28, 1934.

THE CHAMBER'S PROGRAM.

The comprehensive program prepared by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce should appeal to every Atlantan having at heart the continued development of the city as an industrial and commercial center.

The reduced revenues of the chamber will not permit it to put the new program into effect unless the business interests of the city give it more general and liberal support. The new outline of activities has been prepared by the officials of the chamber in order that Atlanta's civic and business leaders may know what is necessary to be done if the city is to keep step with the progress of other cities, and to place the chamber in a position to proceed at once on the broadened program if it is given the necessary financial support.

The average resident of Atlanta, calmly confident of the oft-repeated statement that this city is the "business center of the south" is little aware of the threat to our commercial supremacy which has arisen during recent years.

Already Memphis and Dallas have passed us in volume of wholesale business, largely because they are getting a larger per cent of the business in their sections than Atlanta does in its trading territory.

The people of Atlanta, and especially its business and financial leaders, must awaken to the fact that the city is at one of the most vitally important cross roads of its existence. If it is to continue as the business center of the section it must take the road of civic progressiveness followed during the half century of growth that marked its development from a struggling community to a great metropolis.

The program outlined by the Chamber of Commerce is based upon careful and analytical study of conditions here and elsewhere. Its objective is to bring to Atlanta upwards of a hundred million dollars of business annually that otherwise may go elsewhere.

Such an increase in the volume of Atlanta's trade will benefit either directly or indirectly, every business interest and every resident of the city. It is by that yardstick that the support of the chamber should be measured. Other southern cities, far less able than Atlanta, are contributing several times as much each year to their chambers of commerce.

Their growth in importance as trade centers is chiefly due to this far-sighted policy. If Atlanta is to regain the ground it has lost, and once more strike the development stride that carried it to the forefront of southern cities, we must return to the progressive policies that won for us in the past. The chamber's new program offers full opportunity for the recovery of the ground we have lost.

The present officials, and the board of directors of the chamber, are men who have won outstanding success in the business world and have demonstrated their devotion to the best interests of the city.
The new program is what might be expected from such a progressive group, and they should have the united support of the community.

DANGEROUS RELIGIOUS CULTS.

Recent sensational activities by the leaders of religious cults in the south should serve a good purpose in attracting attention to the danger to the peace and order of a community if these sensationalists are not properly curbed.

Some weeks ago a North Carolina itinerant preacher through many of his followers into a frenzy of emotionalism when he permitted himself to be bitten by a rattlesnake, announcing that through "faith" he would be preserved from injury.

Shortly after, another preacher disappeared and soon the announcement was made that he had been kidnaped. The kidnapping was revealed as a hoax when the supposed victim made a full confession that he had merely hidden away.

Following these sensations comes the splitting away by another cult member of an Alabama boy who had suffered a dangerous injury and whose cure was promised through prayer. Fortunately the whereabouts of the lad was discovered and, although in a critical condition, there is hope that medical science may save his life.

The self-established leaders of these cults prey on the emotionalism of their hearers, whom they generally pick from the most ignorant element of the people. Under the guise of preaching the gospel, they advance theories and doctrines that are seldom to be found in the Bible, but which are accepted as true by many of their hearers as the result of the resort by these "leaders" to tricks to arouse religious frenzy.

Such activities are a threat to law and order and they should be suppressed before they reach the dangerous stage. Most of the "stunts" are fakes, pure and simple, as in the case of the supposedly kidnaped preacher and the Alabama "minister" who admitted to having the fangs of a snake pulled before he permitted himself to be "bitten" in the presence of an hysterical audience.

When the leaders of these so-called religious "cults" resort to dangerous methods of stirring the emotions of their flocks, they should be handled as would any others who threaten the public peace.

NO DOLE FOR AMERICA.

In view of the evils that have grown up under the various dole systems employed by European countries, it is not surprising that Harry L. Hopkins, head of the federal unemployment-relief program, reports upon his return from an inspection of these systems that we must devise an "American plan for America" in our plans for future care of the jobless, the aged and the indigent.

The dole system as applied in England, Germany and other continental nations has brought a huge increase in governmental overhead, an uneven distribution of relief and the undermining of the moral fabric of those supplied in this manner with the necessities of life.

England has profited by her mistakes and has effected sweeping reforms in her methods of caring for those unable, either through unemployment or physical or mental inability, to earn a living, but there are still thousands of men and women in the country to whom the government's aid merely prevents starvation, without bringing opportunity for work or hope for the future.

The United States must have no governmental plan of aid for the unfortunate members of its population who will undermine their morale and thus make more difficult their rehabilitation as good citizens. That is the inevitable result of the dole system.

There are many other plans that can be tried out. Most of them are experiments, it is true, but they certainly will be better than the dole. Job insurance and old age pensions, and the other methods that have been suggested as a safeguard in future against suffering during periods of large unemployment are far more sound than any of the plans that have been adopted with such unfortunate results in Europe.

Even had the European plans worked successfully, conditions in the new world are so different from those in the older countries of Europe that there could be no assurance that they would bring the same results here. Our living standards, viewpoints and ambitions are far above those of Europe and our public policies cannot be copied after those that have been evolved to meet conditions of which the American public knows but little and generally speaking, would not tolerate.

Mr. Hopkins is correct in feeling that the European doles would accomplish more harm than good in the care of our unfortunate, and it is gratifying that there are already evidences that permanent relief for the jobless and infirm will be sought in ways which will inspire hope instead of despair on the part of those who, through no fault of their own, must for a time look to others or to their government for the necessities of life.

The average man usually walks

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Hungarian Jew.

I visited the Jewish quarter in Budapest. It is an extension of the red-light district. Jews were put there in the Middle Ages. They still live there in narrow alleys in houses that are dark and smoky and have no holes in the wall. "How is it with you people?" I asked a venerable rabbi with a long white beard, who did me the honor of asking me into his house. He pulled up his shoulders and raised his eyebrows, but said nothing. Yet the expression was quite understanding. You don't need words sometimes to understand a man. "A good understanding," an old Flemish saying avers, "a good understanding needs only half a word."

I did not feel like talking myself.
The rabbi of the old ghetto almost nauseated me, such squalor, such unimaginable poverty, such naked destitution. "How long have the Jews lived here?" I asked.

"Hundreds of years," said the rabbi.

I sat wondering, how it was possible that they had survived, and told him so. He smiled. "Here's the secret," he said, and he showed me an old book with yellowed leaves, a Talmud. Then we had a glass of tea and the rabbi's wife gave me a herring and a piece of black bread on a little plate. "Very grateful to you for I have been in the house of mighty men, rich men, I mean, who did not even offer me a glass of cold water. I have also been left standing on the mat in the house of bourgeois parvenus who imagined they were cultured people."

Then we walked out through the streets and the rabbi showed me his pocket to speak. He showed me him with deference. Little children came up to him to shake his hands. He had a few words for everybody. But his hand was on the only ray of sunshine in that somber hole. And I wondered again to myself how it is that the yam about Jews rolling in wealth, in ill-gotten wealth, is so easily believed in this world. There were masses of the poorest of the poor, and so in every town of eastern Europe.

Still Trust In God.

"How long will this last?" I said to the rabbi. "Surely, this cannot last.
Your people will perish."
"God will help," he said. God will help. I looked at him. He was quite serious. They were in Babylon 3,000 years ago and they sat by the river. When the Chaldeans came inquired mockingly what they thought of their condition, they said: "God will help." They said it in Spain, in Russia, in Poland, amidst massacres and bloodshed. "God will help," they said. I told you if my people and your people had suffered so long and waited to long for God, we would declare that God was a heartless, unkind being. I told you that there were through the quarter that I was in an American "schristeller," writer, and crowds flocked out to see me. I was asked questions, mentioned some prominent Jewish names, the names of Jewish millionaires, although I also "now some of them, but the names of Bialik, the great Hebrew poet; Sokolow, the age; Sholom Asch, the writer; Einstein, the pioneer; Einstein, the savant. . . .
That was enough.

The respect for learning and for the written word is undiminished among the Jews. Those humble people knew what I was talking of.
Where can you find people in similar circumstances amongst us, who can even tell you the names of three first-rate American poets?

Shanty-Town.

Then I wandered back into the city. I passed a colony of people, who had dug themselves holes in the ground and had covered them with sheets of corrugated iron and flattened tin cans. One woman almost naked was bawling out of field herbs and grass. "For whom is this food?"
I asked.

"For my babies," she said. Then I went to the hotel and picked up the Vienna Free Press and read in it that a Jew, a man of letters, had been dumped into the sea, that coffee is being burnt in Brazil and that cotton fields are being ploughed under in Georgia. And I listened to a jazz band playing "Café in Vienna, Where Romance Started!"

OBILITERATION OF TELANGIECTASES.

Never mind—I have Webster right here and he says it means—um, of Webster falls down again. He means that a telangiectasis is a dilatation of the distal blood vessels. Capillaries, capillary vessels, capillaries, careless doctors call 'em. They are not capillaries, of course. You can't see a capillary without a microscope. They are the smallest vessels. Lots of women are embarrassed by telangiectases. They present a fetching, but a little unpleasant, appearance. Plenty of men, too, have these minute "broken" blood vessels over cheeks, bridge of nose or forehead.

Something can be done about it, certainly. The unsightly venules may be obliterated by much the same method as that which is so successful for obliterating hemorrhoids and varicose veins. Chemical injection of the tiny venules obliterates the blemish and is safe. It does not cause scar formation and gives satisfactory cosmetic results.

By means of special illumination, a powerful binocular loupe and extensive fine needles it is possible to injure the minute veins, so that the solution comes in contact with the endothelial lining and not with the tissues external to the veins. Often a vessel smaller in diameter than the needle itself can be entered with the point of the needle, owing to the elasticity of the venule wall. The injection of one or two venules in a group of spider web formation is sufficient to cause complete and grading disappearance of the entire group.

No specialist is necessary for such treatment. Any good physician who will equip himself with the essential illumination, binocular loupe and fine needles, can treat telangiectases successfully.

This obliteration of telangiectases is practically a refinement of the now well-known chemical obliteration of varicose veins, whether in the legs, or in the form of hemorrhoids, or in other situations.

Formerly there was only the prospect of lifetime wearing of elastic stockings or similar supporters with the alternative of undergoing a formidable operation removing the enlarged veins. Today physicians everywhere are giving their patients the advantage of this modern treatment, and I hear nothing but praise and gratitude from their patients. Unwary patients go to self-commended "specialists" for such treatment, then I hear some sad stories. But people who deal with quacks must expect to have unpleasant experiences.

Formerly, too, victims of varicose

News Behind the News

BY PAUL MALLON.

SPEAKERSHIP WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Certain private negotiations now are under way which may make the election of Mr. Byrns to the speakership less certain than everyone, including Mr. Byrns, has been predicting.

All that can be said about it now is that the two other contestants (Messrs. Rayburn and Bankhead) are not stepping on each other in the backstage scramble.

Indeed, there are reasons for believing Messrs. Rayburn and Bankhead will ultimately pool their resources so that one will become speaker and the other floor leader of the house. That purpose will naturally be denied now, and forever hereafter, up to the hour of the vote. However, it is such a natural potential alliance that it can hardly be avoided.

The only difficult thing about it is to find some suitable promotion for Byrns, who commands the respect of all. A major federal appointment might help to solve that angle.

DOUBTS There are several other inner factors in the situation.
The Rayburn-Byrns alliance was successful last time because it controlled the one element who rode into the house on the Roosevelt election wave. There are 25 to 40 of them, mostly from states which now have been restricted. They have no more chance of coming back to congress next term than you have of being elected president. Their departure will hurt Byrns more than his two opponents.

On the other hand, Byrns has a good chance of lining up a northern or eastern democrat for floor leader on his slate. Then his ally can raise a cry about the south trying to hog the posts of honor.

It is a peculiar thing that the house has sometimes chosen its leaders, not for what they are, but for where they come from. At any rate, the fight this time will be closer than you suspect.

RAILROADS Wall Street got a hot tip last week that the government was going to do something for the railroads. It was sufficiently strong to send rail prices up, but no one seemed to have any definite idea of exactly what the administration had in mind.

The inside on that is the administration is planning to take up energetically the old Eastman report for regulation of highway and waterway rate competition. This report was sent to the last session of congress and immediately forgotten.

You will unquestionably see President Roosevelt breathe new life into it before the first of the year. That means legislation along that line may be expected within a year.

SOVIET DEBT

The outlook for the Russian debt settlement is not as dismal as it is being painted.

Every insider knows the ultimate settlement will have to be a hard bargain struck between the two countries. In such bargaining, the first few offers are mere feelers. In the last offer, the Russians really get down to business. They contend they went half-way.
While the state department is insisting they will have to come further than that, the bargainers are actually getting near a settlement.

Both sides want it. It is only a question of time.

HITLER All the news from Germany fails to say what Mr.
Thyssen thinks. He is the backstage industrial dictator who pulls the strings which make Hitler go. There have been rumors that he has decided Hitler is more of a liability now than an asset. If so, that would mean Der Fuere's days are numbered.
But there is no real basis for knowing whether the rumors have any basis.

FAR EAST The current Russo-Japanese crisis will probably not be the last one. There have been dozens of them before. There should be a few more before the fighting begins.
Far eastern officials and officials here cannot get very excited about the present situation. The way they have figured out is this:

There are a lot of large tanks of diplomatic gasoline in the far east. Both the Japanese and Russians are playing with matches.
At any time, an unaccountable leak may develop and send them both sky high. Then again, they may play on this way for years without an explosion. They themselves certainly do not want one.

The same trial, but accurate, metaphor may be applied to Europe.

NOTES

President Roosevelt has been as chipper as ever the last few days. Ten days ago, callers thought he was unusually glum.

Chairman Sykes, of the radio commission, is supposed to have slipped off to Mississippi a few days ago to help Senator Stephens in the primary. Most of the administration crowd here would consider it a mishap, equal to that which brought Huey Long into national political life, if Bilbo should win the primary down there.

No one here believes that the administration has any idea of starting a subsidized government news agency to supplant the AP, UP and INS. The charge made by Senator Schall was generally considered to be an unintended joke.

A Fable Concerning a Girl Who Changed Her Mind Instead of Herself

By Robert Quillen

Sallie was the kind of girl that story tellers call old-fashioned. She was good; her mind was clean; and she was dainty and fastidious and sweet and shy and alluring and altogether charming.

But she wasn't satisfied, and one day she called on the village magician and said: "I wish to be like a man."

"Very well," said the magician; "I'll make you strong, dignified, noble, unselfish, brave and—"

"Not that kind of man," Sallie interrupted. "I wish to be—well modern. Smoke and drink and that sort of thing. Tell dirty stories and swear and eat tough and coarse. Sophisticated if you know what I mean."

"Oh, sure," said the magician. "Just have a seat till I manipulate the leaves of a curious plant."

"What is it?" she asked.

"Well," said the magician, "it was a rose—a dainty and fragrant and beautiful thing—but I am trying, as you see, to make an apple of it.
Taste it."

Sallie nibbled and made a wry face. "I don't mean to be rude," she she, "but it tastes rotten."

"Of course," said the magician. "It's going to be a rotten apple. I think it would prefer that."

"Nonsense," said Sallie. "If it couldn't be a good apple, it would rather be a rose. I'm sure."

"Oh, sure," said the magician. "I'll make it a rotten apple. I'm just making it resemble a rotten apple."

"But you have spoiled all of the rose part," cried Sallie. "The fragrance is gone and the coloring and the beauty, and nothing remains but the thorns."

"That's true," the magician agreed. "In remodeling the first job is to tear out the original equipment. And now I have finished it and a very good job, too, if I must say so as shouldn't. So that's that, and what can I do for you?"

"You may call a taxi," said Sallie. "I'm going shopping for a new dress that's lacy and frilly and feminine. And I hope those thorns scratch you."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Chicago Changed CHICAGO, Aug. 27.
For the Better.

A puzzling change has come over Chicago since the days of the three-million-dollar fight, the Valentine's Day massacre and the steady routine of individual assassinations among the hoodlums. This is only an impression which may be disputed by statistics, but it does seem that the reign of the racketeer has been broken.

Al Capone is away, to be gone a long time, and a number of the important leaders of the underworld are either dead, jailed up or out of action for the time being, at least;
the repeal of prohibition is a factor.

Still, troublesome and arrogant as those boys were, they were not the kind who terrorized the ordinary people of the city for so many years and made prominent citizens enemy bodyguards. Ordinary people living in the suburbs of Chicago used to think twice before they dared go home late at night for the state of affairs was such that travel on the streets was fraught with genuine risk.

A woman learned to hide her jewelry in her hand when driving home at night. The theater district in town and if she were alone in her car she locked the doors from the inside and rolled up the driving window while waiting for the traffic light. Very often people simply ignored the lights and went through them rather than stop at dark corners. The risk of summons from a marking cop was preferred to the danger of a stick-up and a shooting.

Strangers Waited Strangers,
In Stations.

Chicago in those days, in many cases preferred to spend their time between trains in the railroad stations, venturing out no more than they had to in going from one terminal to another. Some strangers, in fact, still know Chicago by the tough reputation from which the city suffered in Mr. Capone's time and still avoid the streets as much as possible.

The change is apparent in the page one matter in the newspapers. The Chicago papers, although they sometimes did permit themselves a hurt editorial comment against the mob, emphasis on crime never did play crime down. When an important hoodlum was found claimed by suddenly in some way, the people here in the outskirts, they laid it on the line without reservation, although these occurrences tended to injure their town. They do not seem to be so frank about the outbreak of dysentery last year when a treatment of the epidemic suitable to its importance might have frightened people away from the World Fair.

There is a difference of opinion, even about that. They claim they gave the story all it was worth according to their news judgment and as soon as they heard of it.

Gambling Dens Gambling
Still Thrive.

There has been no less of course, there always has been more or less open gambling in Chicago and it seems to be the policy of the present administration to permit the pawns to operate. The Daily News deprecates this and prints crusades accompanied by minute discussions of the gambling rooms but nobody does anything to them.

With the bootlegging business and a number of other rackets smashed up, however, a political organization can hardly be expected to close out the last important source of campaign revenue and underworld co-operation.
Elections cannot be won in Chicago without certain deference to the convenience and pleasure of the criminal element. Perhaps it is enough to ask, for the time being, and something to be said for that, that the worst discriminate killing, bombing, kidnap-ing and robbing of the terrible years has been abated to a degree which is distinctly noticeable in the city.

Certainly as far as the daily safety of Mr. Roosevelt's common man is concerned, there has been a distinct improvement and this is attributed to some extent to the work of James Allan, as chief of the police department, and Thomas Courtney, as the district attorney or prosecutor. Mr. Allan is a cop, not much concerned with military salutes or fancy dress costumes for his patrolmen and Mr.
Courtney is free of embarrassing connections with the underworld and thus able to act freely. I will avoid going on a limb with regard to the independence of the chief and the prosecutor, however, as such officers have a way of disilluminating persons who are naive about them.

I will just report that Chicago is much changed since repeal. It could be a hell of a good thing, but it is imposed on the city by the powers which control it so that the World's Fair may draw customers and succeed.

Rich's Fashion Forum Holds Rehearsal for Today's Show

Nine models, in gowns and coats that vie with autumn leaves in the richness of their color tones, turned and posed at the "dress rehearsal" Monday afternoon of Rich's fashion forum. The forum, which will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the tea room at Rich's department store, is an exposition of styles for the benefit of the salespeople working in the store.

The public is invited to the forum through a happy thought of a member of the personnel staff who realized that these "fashion tips" would interest every well-dressed woman. Today's audience will, therefore, be made up of 250 members of the selling department of Rich's and a number more women who like to know "the inside story" of what is to be worn this fall.

The stream-line draped effect characterized the new silhouette, both in coats and dresses. Emphasis was placed on luxurious materials and interesting details in the construction of line. Most of the clothes shown were subtle and more graceful than those worn last spring.

Black remains the most popular color for fall coats, according to Flor Brander, head of the coat department. Five types of coats, ranging from the camel's hair polo coat to a dressy coat with a Persian lamb collar, were shown. Members of the "prevue" audience cast a favorable vote for a sports coat of woody-green tweed with a large smoky racoon collar.

Most glamorous of all, however, was the parade of evening dresses. Feminine sighs were heard in the audience as the models in black and gold, champagne and brown, and blue and silver, appeared from behind black velvet draperies to shine for a moment before the "prevue" audience. The gown for which Paton was responsible, was most original in black tulle with a slit skirt and a pleated petticoat flounce of pink that shows through the slit.

Sports clothes for fall have taken on a dressier air. A casual elegance is achieved through the use of softer materials and richer furs for trimming, according to the fashion experts who chose the models on display. Tweed remains the classic material for suits and school blue is the newest color.

The assortment of daytime dresses was less colorful, but more practical, than the rest of the forum. Mrs. Edna Lee, stylist for Rich's, gave the new color.

London To Penalize Auto Horn Blowers

LONDON, Aug. 27.—(AP) Ten dollars a month is henceforth to be the top price for sounding a motor horn within a radius of five miles from Charing Cross in London between 11:30 p. m. and 7 a. m. under a new order of the transport ministry put into effect tonight.

The silence order was designed to enable residents and hospital patients within the zone to get a night's rest undisturbed.

Pedestrians were asked to assist in the drive for quiet by keeping their minds alert.

CHICAGO TEACHERS ARE PAID IN FULL

$26,000,000 Disbursed and Pedagogues Are Promised Cash Hereafter.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The wolf which had lived at the door so long he seemed like one of the family was shooed away from the Chicago school teachers today with $26,000,000.

As fast as they could march up to special pay windows the teachers were paid in full—for the first time in seven months. Checks ranging from $892 to $3,391 put them on a cash basis and back in the market as consumers.

It was estimated that when all were paid it would give Chicago business $100,000,000 worth of action, on the theory that every dollar will be used at least five times. About half of the money will go for food and clothing to the merchants and landlords who aided the instructors over since January.

Many Will Marry.
Back in the money, the teachers hurried off to experience the pleasure of spending again.

"Plenty of the girls will get married," said Miss Bessie Specht, physical education instructor, as she held her place in the three-block-long waiting line.

"I might get a new car," said Teacher James Tortelli. "I've ordered a suit and an overcoat."

The pay day insured when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation loaned the school board some $22,000,000, placed 17,000 board of education employees back in the retail market.

Clothes, permanent waves, vacations, insurance, sending the boy to college, and the rest of the things the teachers had in mind as their ship came in.

Distribution of the fat checks was delayed. Some 5,000—the rest skipped the first day's rush expected to come tomorrow—were stretched out for three blocks when the appointed hour of 10 o'clock arrived.

Some 10,000 of thirty had been there overnight, playing bridge in the lobby of the old City-State Bank building on Wells street. Harrison A. Kincaid took up his position at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night. One of his creditors sent him a breakfast.

Last Pay Delay.
A few had chairs or boxes; the rest—neatly dressed in their 1933 best—came unprepared. Mayor Edward J. Kelly arrived to pass out the first check, but it was a false start. The tedious job of checking bonds and tax warrants, the loan collateral, hadn't been finished.

The teachers waited until after noon. Hawkers sold boxes to sit on, oranges and apples for lunch. Finally, at 1:15 o'clock the parade back to solvency began. They were paid at the rate of seven a minute. Outside boys handed them advertising doggers for vacation cruises.

The money came to the teachers with the promise that their pay troubles—extending back to 1930—were over. Hereafter the board will pay promptly, said President James McCahey, ending the long lean era in which the teachers once worked an entire year without pay.

And when he explains the social theory back of the Nazi movement, his hands move in eloquent gestures.

"Hitler wants to educate the people to feel that common welfare is more important than individual welfare," he said.

Dr. Wendler refused to comment on the recent ousting of a well-known American journalist from Germany. He said that he knew only what he had read in Atlanta newspapers and that as yet only one side of the story had been revealed.

Mrs. Wendler is accompanying Dr. Wendler on his official tour. They will remain in Atlanta until Wednesday morning.

Six Billion Income Seen for Farmers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(UP) American farmers will have an income exceeding $6,000,000,000 more than they earned last year, the bureau of agricultural economics estimated tonight.

The increase, particularly notable because of the ravages of this summer's crop-killing drought, will be brought about through higher prices and benefit payments from the federal government.

The bureau said that farmers already have received approximately $2,894,000,000 in cash income from sales of crops. In addition to this $170,000,000 was distributed by the AAA as benefit payments during the first seven months of 1934, and $18,000,000 was paid to cattlemen for cattle purchased by the government in drought-stricken areas.

During the last five months of 1933 farmers received $2,377,000,000 in return for their products. The bureau estimated that this figure will be increased from three to six per cent for the same period this year, due to higher prices.

Soviet Charges Japs Arrest Red Citizens

Heretofore arrests of Russian employees of the railway have been made by Manchurian and white guard policemen. Reports that Japanese officials have taken a direct hand in the turbulent affairs of the railroad caused concern here.

Russian dispatches from Khabarovsk, Siberia, stated that relatives of the sons of arrested Russians are greatly worried because of alleged brutal treatment of the prisoners.

Parents don't do it intentionally

Parents would not, knowingly, hinder the child's progress in school, yet statistics reveal that one child in five is handicapped in its work because of poor eyesight.

They don't realize that even the child itself may be unaware of such a condition. Eyestrain is not always easy to detect, unless accompanied by headaches or other warning signals.

It is a serious thing, impaired vision, which parents could often prevent by having the children's eyes examined once a year, when going to school.

We make the examination and fit glasses, all at one cost.

Germans United by Faith in Hitler, Says Consul on First Atlanta Visit

By SARAH WILSON.

The thesis in Germany have a large and well-developed recreational program about which little is heard, said Dr. Ernst Wendler, German consul at New Orleans, who was in Atlanta Monday on his first official visit since his appointment to serve the southern territory of eight states three months ago.

"Many trips are planned for the young people to visit foreign lands," Dr. Wendler said. "They also take trips in little folding-boats up and down the rivers of our country."

When questioned as to the banning of audit colonies by the Hitler regime, he shook his head in a puzzled fashion and said that he did not know of any definite nudist movement in Germany.

"We have abnormal people in Germany, too," he said. "It may be that there are colonies. Certainly they are not allowed."

Turning to more serious matters, Dr. Wendler told of the new Germany in which the people are united by their faith in a single man, his faith, he said, is the result of Hitler's sincerity rather than the outcome of a mere political constellation.

The people are ready to suffer if necessary to support Hitler and his ideals," he said. "They may find things wrong with the regime, but never with Hitler himself."

To refute the accusation often made in other countries that the German people are oppressed by the Nazi system, Dr. Wendler pointed out that in the recent election 4,000,000 persons voted against Hitler.

"I am very glad the number was so large," he said. "If there had been no opposition other countries would have been suspicious. That shows that the election was real."

In reference to the Nazi plebiscite Dr. Wendler expressed his confidence that the inhabitants of the region would vote to go with Germany, rather than ally themselves with France, Catholics, socialists, and others opposed to the Nazi regime will vote to remain loyal to the jurisdiction of New York to Mobile, Ala., would be discontinued, effective October 1.

The service is a portion of the New York Tampa, Fla. Mobile line operated by the company. The announcement said that the New York-Tampa service would be continued on the present basis.

In appearance he might well pass for a prosperous American business man, but his courtly manners and military bearing are typically Teutonic.

And when he explains the social theory back of the Nazi movement, his hands move in eloquent gestures.

"Hitler wants to educate the people to feel that common welfare is more important than individual welfare," he said.

Dr. Wendler refused to comment on the recent ousting of a well-known American journalist from Germany. He said that he knew only what he had read in Atlanta newspapers and that as yet only one side of the story had been revealed.

Mrs. Wendler is accompanying Dr. Wendler on his official tour. They will remain in Atlanta until Wednesday morning.

U. S. SILVER PURCHASES TOTAL 59,553,110 OUNCES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(UP) The federal government has acquired 59,553,110 ounces of silver, at $0.01 cents an ounce, since it nationalized the metal, the treasury announced today.

That is about one-fourth of the total amount of silver which the government expects to acquire as part of the nationalization order.

In addition, the treasury has purchased 11,698,000 ounces of newly-mined silver at 64.1-2 cents an ounce.

EVANGELINE BOOTH MAY HEAD ARMY

U. S. Commander Is One of Four Mentioned for Higgins' Vacancy.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Two women, both descendants of General William Booth, who founded the Salvation Army 70 years ago, were prominently mentioned for leadership tonight as 47 delegates from that worldwide organization prepared to elect a successor to General Edward J. Higgins, of England.

While complete secrecy surrounded today's informal sessions at which candidates were discussed and there was no inkling as to whom would be selected, these four were most prominently mentioned:

Commander Evangeline Booth, of the United States, daughter of General William Booth, who was dramatically ousted as leader five years ago after he was termed physically unfit. He died shortly after.

Commissioner Catherine Bramwell Booth, granddaughter of the founder and daughter of General Bramwell Booth.

Commissioner Henry Mapp, present chief of staff.

Commissioner Samuel Hurren.

The two female heirs of the Booth power would give no indication tonight as to whether they intended to renew their battle, threatened five years ago, for leadership of the organization.

Evangeline Booth declined to admit her candidacy.

Catherine Booth said: "We cannot talk about this election. We have received instructions not to do so."

"There has been and is," she added, "strong opposition to the idea of a woman being 'general'—that I can say with certainty."

Tomorrow's meeting of the council, composed of 47 leading officers from 22 countries, will choose Higgins' successor by secret ballot, and results may not be known for some time.

The fact that the trust deeds of the organization provide that there is no position in the army, not even that of general, from which a woman can be excluded on the grounds of sex, led to the belief that Commander Evangeline or Commissioner Catherine Booth might be nominated.

Any member of the high council may nominate a candidate to succeed the retiring general, and, provided the nominee accepts, his or her name is included.

A two-thirds majority is required before the new general can be appointed.

FARMERS WILL GUIDE AAA, DAVIS DECLARES

DES MOINES, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Chester C. Davis, administrator of the AAA, today promised the farmers of America that they shall have the final word in agricultural policy. In an appeal to the men who till the soil, the national administrator urged a greater co-operative effort along whatever lines are suggested by the farmers themselves.

He tossed politics out of the picture with the statement: "I confess I do not care much what the politicians say of the farm program" and made his promise with these words: "No agricultural program will be adopted or long continued unless it is a farmers' program understood by them and carried forward by them. The final word on agricultural policy when it is spoken will be said by you."

Crackers Battle Innings To Defeat Little Rock, 5 to 4

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 27.—I am no columnist, but anything to help a friend.

This is Kentucky, of which the poets sing, where the blue grass waves in the August breeze; where Man o' War first saw the light of day, where the sun shines bright (sometimes too bright) on my old Kentucky home; where Daniel Boone played hide-and-seek with the Shawnees; where burley flourishes, and where I hope to build a football team good enough that the people here will let me linger a while.

I am the only Kentuckian I know who has not been commissioned a colonel, but as yet I haven't been able to grow the proper kind of a beard.

I always heard of Kentucky as the "Dark and Bloody Ground" where rival tribes of Indians scrimmaged with tomahawks and flint spears before the pioneers finally forced them out of the conference. They tell me now that I was misled as to the translation of the name, and that Kentucky really is an Indian name which means "Land of Tomorrow." I hope that I will not be expected to lead the Kentucky Wildcats to a championship that soon.

After my years at Auburn, where the sun shines bright even in the winter time, I arrived in Lexington last January, all set for spring practice. I came in on the wings of Boreas and soon came to the conclusion that I would have to equip my boys with skis if we expected to get any exercise. It snowed, then it sleeted, and it melted a bit then it froze, all the while I was wasting good time by the fireside while the boys from the heart of the conference were punting, passing and scrimmaging.

Porter Grant came up here with me from Auburn. A loyal Confederate, Grant immediately solved the problem of why the rebels lost the war. The Yankees lured the southern soldiers to Kentucky and froze them to death, in Grant's opinion. Ted Twomey didn't mind the weather. Growing up on the icebergs of Lake Superior, Ted was in his element here during the past so-called Kentucky spring.

Seriously, we managed to have some good weather before the season ended and we had an opportunity to give the candidates some good workouts—enough to get a line on what they could do. I was very well pleased at the material which my good friend, Harry Gamage, bequeathed me when he left Kentucky to coach at South Dakota. I found a few good linemen and some excellent backs. But the lack of guards was appalling. Necessity, so I have been told, being the mother of invention, we immediately began the slow and agonizing process of manufacturing some presentable guards out of what we had at hand. I feel fairly certain now that we will be able to put 11 players on the field for every game next fall, and although we will have tough sledding, we are not forfeiting anything.

A TOUGH SCHEDULE.

We have a tough schedule for this fall, although only four of our foes are members of the conference, but what husky babies these four turned out to be. Auburn, Tulane and Tennessee are enough to give any coach the jitters when he finds them on his slate.

I don't know what sort of team we will have. Naturally I hope it will be as good as possible. They are fine boys to work with and they have the usual fine spirit which college boys have who are genuinely interested in football.

I have a plan to get even with any coach should there be one who wins from us by a bit of luck. I don't know anything about races but I am going to wire him tips on the races to any coach who wins from us and tell him to bet his roll on my tip. It's a sure thing. I'm going to get all my tips from Man o' War and he can't talk.

A FINE GROUP.

Seriously, I think our conference is a great one. There is a great and friendly spirit of rivalry. There are no ill feelings about games and we know we will meet a clean, sportsmanlike team every Saturday we go out to play.

Although I left Auburn, I am glad that I remained in the Southeastern conference where, in my opinion, as good a brand of football is played as you will find anywhere in the country. All you have to do to arrive at a similar conclusion is to review the games played in recent years between teams in our conference and the teams of the Big Ten, the Pacific coast or any place else.

Then again, it is a pleasure to live in the south, although now I am in the northern part of the south, not only because of the climate but also because of the southern people, than whom there are no finer. I have made many warm friendships since coming to the Confederate country and I hope to keep them.

When I think of the Southeastern conference I can't help remembering that I played on the same Notre Dame team with Harry Mehre, coach at Georgia, and Frank Thomas, Alabama's coach. Harry was at center, Frank was the quarterback and I was fullback. There we stood, one behind the other in a line, with me bringing up the rear. Golly, but I would be satisfied if my Wildcats would stack up that close to Georgia and Alabama, in the conference race.

I believe that Alabama, Georgia, Georgia Tech and Tulane will be hard to beat this year and they probably will be bunched at the top of the conference ladder when Thanksgiving rolls around.

Women To Meet On Mat Tonight

Miss Helen Joiner, of Miami, and Miss Frances Duncan, of New York, will return to the Buckhead arena tonight in the feature match of the program. Miss Duncan won the decision over her rival two weeks ago.

A battle royal will open the program at 8:15 o'clock.

Pro Grid Leaders Will Meet Today

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 27.—(AP)—Sam Avey and Coach Jerry Jones, expected to represent Tulsa in the formal organization of the American Pro Football Association tomorrow, were the first arrivals today for the conference.

R. A. Goodman, president of the association, which will be composed of eight teams, said the only entry in doubt is Kansas City and that he expected a representative from that city for the meeting.

Godman said he had been notified

BILL LEE GIVES GIANTS 3 HITS AND CUBS WIN

Schumacher Shaded in Mound Duel and Loses It, 1 to 0.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Holding the world's champions to three hits, as did his pitching colleague, Lon Warneke, yesterday, big Bill Lee today shaded Hal Schumacher in a brilliant pitching duel to give the Chicago Cubs their second straight victory over the New York Giants. The score was 1 to 0.

"But" Stainback's seventh-inning double following Kiki Cuyler's single, brought home the only run of the game and reduced the Giants' advantage over the Cubs to four and one-half games.

A crowd of 25,000, the largest Monday turnout at Wrigley field in several seasons, saw Schumacher match the Cubs' freshman right-hander for six scoreless innings. The break came in the seventh, however, and Cuyler, already on his way to second, sprinted home as Stainback slayed a double against the left-field wall, fair only by inches.

Cuyler was the only Cub to pass second and Stainback the only other Chicagoan to reach the keyhole, as they were held to five hits by Schumacher. He did not issue a base on balls, while Lee gave four free tickets to first base. Lee's Giants got as far as second, however.

The victory was Lee's eleventh triumph of the season, three of which were scored at the expense of the Giants, who have yet to defeat him. The defeat was Schumacher's sixth setback as against 19 victories.

Joe Palmisano Scores Buster With Neat Bunt

Kelley Checks Rally in Ninth and Wins 21st Game.

By Jimmy Jones.

The ball game which the Crackers and Little Rock Travelers started playing on August 19 finally came to a conclusion yesterday with Atlanta winning out in the 21st inning by the score of 5 to 4 when Joe Palmisano, the catcher, dropped a squeeze bunt from the front of the plate that brought Buster Chatham home from third with one out.

It really should be stated, however, that Atlanta won only in the 21st inning for that is the official length of the game in the records. They started playing it on the 19th in Little Rock and with the Travelers winning out in the 11th inning by the score of 1 to 0, it was called at the end of three innings to allow the Crackers to catch a train.

Atlanta won out in the 21st inning by the score of 5 to 4 when Joe Palmisano, the catcher, dropped a squeeze bunt from the front of the plate that brought Buster Chatham home from third with one out.

It really should be stated, however, that Atlanta won only in the 21st inning for that is the official length of the game in the records. They started playing it on the 19th in Little Rock and with the Travelers winning out in the 11th inning by the score of 1 to 0, it was called at the end of three innings to allow the Crackers to catch a train.

TRANSFERRED HERE.

The game was transferred here by special permission of President John D. Martin and the teams resumed playing it in the second inning.

BRIDGES HOLDS MACKS, TIGERS WIN BY 11-0

Detroit Ace Gives Up But Five Scattered Hits.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—(AP)—With Tom Bridges allowing only five scattered hits for his first victory of the Detroit Tigers' current eastern invasion, the American league leaders scored in a romp over the Philadelphia Athletics today, winning 11 to 0.

The Tigers started strong and finished in the same manner, banging out 14 hits including three each by Manager Mickey Cochrane and Marvin Owen and a home run by "Goose" Goslin.

The victory, coming while the Yankees were scoring a victory over the White Sox, enabled the Tigers to keep their lead of four and one-half games.

Joe Casarella's wildness helped the Bengals to get off to a three-run lead in the second inning. Making only one hit, a single by Owen, the Tigers were assisted by three free tickets to first, and a hit batsman and an error by Dix Williams.

They added three more runs in the next two frames, nicked the plate with one in the sixth and wound up today with a four-run assault on the

Charles Danmalls Leads Qualifiers in City Amateur Meet

POSTS 73 CARD ON FIRST DAY OF QUALIFYING

Complete Tests Today; Hughes Ready to Defend Title.

By Roy White.
Charles Danmalls Jr., a member of Georgia Tech's golf team and a former medalist in the southern inter-collegiate tournament, set the pace Monday on the No. 1 East Lake course in the qualifying rounds of the annual city amateur tournament. Danmalls carded a fine 73, two strokes over par, and was several strokes higher than his nearest competitor.

Today will be the final for the 18-hole qualifying, with match play scheduled for Wednesday morning. Entries will be received today as long as time permits the playing of 18 holes.

No starting times have been assigned except where the players have requested it and the participants today will be placed as conveniently as possible in the qualifying.

HUGHES ENTERED.
Dr. Julius Hughes will defend his title, it was announced today. He was one of the Atlantans to qualify for the national amateur and was undefeated until last Monday when he was defeated by the city champion, Danmalls. Hughes also will not enter and today will be the final for the 18-hole qualifying, with match play scheduled for Wednesday morning. Entries will be received today as long as time permits the playing of 18 holes.

Only a few players were out Monday, and except for Danmalls' score, there was no noteworthy good score. A majority of the city's outstanding players arrived home late Sunday from the tournament at Lake Mountain Estates and Radium Springs and did not attempt to qualify Monday.

HOLDITCH RETURNS.
Stanley Holditch, who won the Radium Springs tournament, was a visitor at East Lake Monday, receiving congratulations on his victory. He will qualify today.

Dave and Charlie Black Jr., two former Georgia amateur champions, were on the practice grounds Monday, correcting some defects in their game. Both are entered in the amateur and will qualify today.

Billy Street, Georgia Tech fullback; Morton Campbell Jr. and Gene Gailard, young Ansley Park star, were among the low scorers Monday, but were six strokes back of Danmalls.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Atlanta Golf Association and is the last of the major golf events in city players this year. Paul Duke, who was the starter for the city tournament, will be in charge of the city tournament. He will be assisted by George Sargent, the East Lake professional, and members of the Atlanta Golf Association.

ANGELIC WINS GEYSER PURSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Returning to competition after a hiatus of more than two years, the good-looking filly which cost Mrs. Ramon Runyon only $500, ran to her best form to win the 5-12 furlongs of the Geyser purse at Saratoga today.

Under Johnny Gilbert's smart handling, the little chestnut daughter of Infinite stepped to the front in the last furlong, and won by a neck over C. H. Knobelknecht's Below Zero. Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Black Gift, an eligible for the $10,000 Hopeful, was beaten a hair's length for the place. As the favorite Angelic paid 13 to 5.

For the greater part of the race, Angelic and Below Zero, ridden by Charley Rainey, ran almost like a team, with Mrs. Runyon's representative leading into the stretch. Below Zero stuck her head in front entering the last furlong but in the final drive Meade shot him out to the front.

Back among the also-rans were five other candidates for the Hopeful, including World's Champion, stablemate of Black Gift, E. D. Shaffer's Top Dog, Katherine E. Hitt's Sunned, the Wheatley stable's Maddest, M. L. Schwartz's Sanctity and Mrs. James M. Austin's Sound Advice.

Azucur, which has been performing over the jumps until his previous starts, stepped a mile in 1:38.35 to best four high-class colts in the supporting feature. The 6-year-old gelding, also ridden by Gilbert, scored by five lengths over T. M. Cassidy's Universe, with R. R. Ramsey's Blue Again third. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Dynamic, making the first start of the year, was among the also-rans.

Troop 2 Winner In Bike Derby
Troop 2, sponsored by the Trinity Methodist church, scored 25 points to win the Boy Scout cycling derby Sunday afternoon at Lakewood. Troop 70 came second and Troop 19 was third.

Scout Ed Griffin, of Troop 72, established a new all-time junior record for the mile, which he negotiated in 2 minutes and 36 seconds.

Scout James Jones, of Troop 2, won the individual award and was presented a medal by Walthour & Hood. The winning trophy was given a loving cup by the same firm.

Joe Zimmerman, district commissioner, was in charge.

Events and winners: Stablemate of Black Gift, E. D. Shaffer's Top Dog, Katherine E. Hitt's Sunned, the Wheatley stable's Maddest, M. L. Schwartz's Sanctity and Mrs. James M. Austin's Sound Advice.

HAITIAN TREATY IS NEXT ON LIST

Pleased With Reaction to Cuban Pact, U. S. Is Ready for Discussion.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Visibly encouraged by the predominantly favorable reaction accorded the Cuban-American reciprocal trade treaty, state department officials today outlined the second reciprocal treaty to be negotiated with Haiti.

Authoritative word came from the department that announcement of public hearings on this treaty might come within a day or two. Under the law, this announcement must be made 30 days before the treaty is concluded.

The American-Haitian trade exchange now is inconsequential, with a heavy balance of trade in favor of the United States. In 1932 Haiti bought about $5,000,000 worth of products from the United States and sold about a half million dollars' worth to this country, chiefly coffee.

Here again, however, as in the case of Cuba, the United States intends to use an economic instrument to assist political stability. This country has just withdrawn its marines from Haiti after 19 years' occupation and is anxious that political tranquility not be upset in the once turbulent little republic, which President Roosevelt visited in July.

A generally favorable reaction to the Cuban pact in Cuban and high American industrial circles, as announced in a state department communication today, did not, however, completely offset the criticism of Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Even Mr. Gray's remarks, however, were somewhat milder than had been generally anticipated. He declared he felt there were "good as well as bad things in the Cuban treaty," although he believed the United States gave away more than it obtained in negotiating the Cuban instrument.

The state department announced the treaty's conclusion had caused a business boom in Cuba, with large orders already placed for American lard and potatoes. Avocado producers in the United States were understood to have congratulated the state department for arranging with Cuba to keep Cuban avocados out of the American market during certain domestic production months.

Rialto Shows Today

'Let's Talk It Over'

Chester Morris, one of the scene's most popular depictees of her-man roles, comes to the Rialto theater today with the three-day engagement of "Let's Talk It Over," brilliant, new, romantic comedy produced by Universal and directed by Kurt Neumann.

This story of an ambitious naval boy, who resigns from his ship in order to win business success, a place in high society and the hand of a lovely heiress, is one of the funniest and most intriguing comedies of the season. Its dialog, written by John Meehan Jr., sparkles with wit, and among the striking situations which follow in rapid order throughout the plot are many which will bring laughs for days after the picture is seen.

The picture can only be shown three days owing to a plethora of important bookings made for the Rialto by Manager W. T. Murray, but the shortness of the engagement only adds to the importance, for all those who like sparkling screen entertainment, of seeing it before the engagement is over, on Thursday night.

ZAHAROFF'S HAND SEEN IN U. S. GUNS

Famous Greek-Englishman Said Connected With Munitions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Agents of the senate's special committee investigating munitions were reported today to have found a link between Sir Basil Zaharoff, Europe's mystery man, and United States war materials manufacturers.

Letters from the enormously wealthy European, about whom little is known but who sometimes is called a "maker and breaker of kings," have been found in the files of some of the leading munitions manufacturers in this country.

The subject will be aired probably soon after the opening of hearings here a week from tomorrow. Summons already have been served on around a dozen representatives of the industry to give testimony on various lines.

Iron to Japan.

Senator Pope, democrat, Idaho, the only member of the committee now in the capital, refused to affirm or deny the Zaharoff reports. He admitted, however, that the committee's investigators had found international connections between the two countries in this country and large firms of other nations.

The Idahoan declined to enlarge on this statement, saying he could not disclose work accomplished during the past few months until public hearings open.

A new angle in the investigation was seen in a prediction by Pope that the committee probably would look into the shipment of scrap iron from the United States to Japan.

On the first of this Wednesday, he presented with a "thirty-year" service button by the company. He began as a collector and worked his way to the top by diligent application to his duties.

He was a Mason, a member of the Presbyterian church and Telephone Pioneer's Club and East Lake Country Club.

In addition to his brother, he is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. H. L. DeLoor.

The funeral will be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning at Spring Hill and Dr. Louis D. Newton will officiate. Burial will be in the New Decatur cemetery. Pallbearers at the casket are to be George Wood, C. A. Matthews, R. C. Henderson, S. H. Krone, G. C. Bowden and William Selig Howard.

be followed by emphasis on its purpose to "check the needs of respect for the rights of persons" as well as of property.

Smith, Davis, Representative Wadsworth, republican, New York, and others, reported that Alabama had not only the late of the NRA but ultimate recovery itself.

Gorman promised the strike would be without disorder "unless provoked by employers." He said he had received reports that Alabama manufacturers had laid in stocks of machine guns and tear gas for use in the strike.

"Do you believe it?" he was asked. "Yes," he replied.

Gorman said manufacturers would be sent into the field ordering all discharges curbed unless provoked.

HOPKINS DENIES PLAN TO FINANCE STRIKE

Black eye flashing, Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, today expressed "resentment" at what he termed an "implication" that he had agreed to take care of anyone who walks out in the threatened textile strike.

Relief officials, he said, have standing orders to take care of strikers like anyone else, on the basis of need, unless the labor department or the labor relations board decides the strike is unjustified.

Hopkins added, however, that no strike in the past had been so classified.

"It's a surprising thing to me we haven't had a damned sight more strikes than we have," he commented.

STRIKE OF TRUCKMEN THREATENS NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Possibility of a strike of 10,000 truck drivers, threatening to tie up the port of New York and interfere with the city's food supply, loomed tonight with a breakdown of negotiations for a new collective agreement.

A meeting of the membership of the International Teamsters' Union was called today for Friday night, when a strike vote will be taken. The union's agreement with the Merchant Truckmen's Bureau of New York expires Saturday.

The union has made demands for restoration of the $5 wage cut which it agreed to 18 months ago. The present wage scale ranges from $35 to $40 a week.

No Underwriting by U. S.

The strike committee was informed today of a statement by Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, at his press conference that "we are making no plans to take care of the textile strikers."

Hopkins expressed resentment at what he termed an implication that the relief administration had agreed to take care of any of the workers who took part in the walkout, adding: "I am sure we are underwriting none of the strike." He explained, however, that it was a policy of the administration to handle relief among strikers on the basis of need, unless the labor department or the labor relations board decided the strike is unjustified.

Gorman told newsmen a short time before that the question of relief was a matter for the labor department.

"In all our strikes we have managed to sustain our people," he said. "We'll do so in this strike."

An appeal to public sympathy will be made Wednesday night in nationwide radio addresses by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and by Gorman.

The federation's promise of full support already is taking tangible form in the south. George Googe, speaking from A. F. L. headquarters at Atlanta, reported today that the entire southern organizing staff had been thrown into the textile situation to stay there until the strike is won.

The entire executive council of the U. S. T. W. will meet here Thursday with President Thomas F. McMahon, to decide among other things, the date of the walkout of the silk, rayon and woolen workers. Miss Elizabeth Nord and Frank Schweitzer will represent the silk workers, while Joseph Sylvia and William Dunlap will represent the woolen and worsted division. Others summoned include:

John E. Powers, Pawtucket, R. I.; Alexander McKown, Philadelphia; Abraham Bins, New Bedford, Mass.; William B. Smith, Paterson, N. J.; Emil Rieve, Philadelphia; Anthony Ammirato, Paterson, N. J.; Harry F. Walton, East Stroudsburg, Pa.; W. G. Watson, Salisbury, N. C.; G. W. McCabe, Inman, S. C.; William F. Kelley, Philadelphia; James Starr, New York; John Peel, Greenville, N. C.; Horace A. GOOGE CLAIMED SUPPORT
OF U. S. THROUGH RELIEF

Southern labor leaders, meeting in the office of George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, last week declared that the government would finance the textile workers' strike.

The United Textile Workers, the union the strike has less than $1,000,000 to finance the strike, which will put strike relief up to local unions, Googe said. The government, the labor leader said, has pledged itself to let "no one go to let it be pointed out that when the funds of the local unions and the personal savings of the strikers are exhausted it will be the emergency relief administration to look after the strikers. The strike can last indefinitely on this basis, or at least until there is a change in the government's relief policy, it was said.

NATIONAL BOARD CALLS MEETING ON COTTON STRIKE

authority and head of the textile institute, Garrison said: "If any action is to be taken it should be taken speedily."

He urged Sloan to round up a representative committee to meet here today after tomorrow, or if that date was too early, on Thursday, with labor representatives at the board's offices here.

With preparations completed for a walkout of some 400,000 cotton mill workers, the strike committee of the United Textile Workers perfected arrangements for similar strikes in the silk, rayon and dyeing, and woolen and worsted divisions.

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee, said it was "highly possible" that the walkout of some 300,000 in all might be simultaneous with the cotton textile strike. Final decision on that point will be made by the executive council of the union on Thursday.

Elaborate textile strike preparations are polished at the strike headquarters here. Gorman said the exact hour of the strike would be disclosed Thursday, but authentic sources said confidential instructions had been sent to regional leaders to stop all cotton mill operations at the close of work Friday.

Meetings Monday.

The union's strike committee today arranged for mass meetings at noon on Monday at the city hall, city commons and other public places from Maine to Alabama in preparation for the big walkout the following day.

Gorman declared that the union had not entirely abandoned hope of presidential intervention, although he said no overtures had been made to the White House.

"I am confident," he said, "that if the president knew the exact situation in the industry he would take action."

The early action by the labor relations board was awaited by the strike committee and the industry, reports were current that the cotton textile industrial relations board was likely to be established or authorized to act on the strike.

The union has rejected its mediation services with the sharp assertion it had no confidence in the board.

Industry apparently was as uncompromising as labor. In a communication to Bruere, George A. Sloan, chairman of the cotton textile code authority, asserted today that Alabama manufacturers had laid in stocks of machine guns and tear gas for use in the strike.

Miss Doris Becker Is Honored At Luncheon at Tate Estates

TATE MOUNTAIN ESTATES. Aug. 27.—Miss Doris Becker, popular member of the school girl contingent of Atlanta, has arrived at the Tate Mountain Estates to join her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Becker, at their summer home, Cherokee Cottage, and is a charming and attractive addition to the mountain colony. Miss Becker has been attending Laurel Falls camp for girls for the summer season and her arrival at the Estates is the occasion for a number of social affairs, the first of which was the luncheon at which Mrs. Robert H. Martin entertained Monday at her home, Craven Cottage.

Covers were placed for Miss Becker, Miss Boline Spalding, of Atlanta, a campaigner of the honor, who is spending some time at the lodge, Miss Margaret Winship, Marjorie Armstrong and Joanna Stegman, of Athens, Ga., and Mrs. Martin.

Mrs. W. O. Alston, of Alston, Miss Frances Alston and Miss Peggy Alston, who sail August 31 for Europe to spend the coming year, were the honorees Friday at the bon voyage luncheon at which Mrs. Joe Winship entertained at her summer home at the Estates. Covers were placed for 10 guests.

Mrs. Robert H. Martin was hostess at an informal luncheon Wednesday in honor of Miss Margaret Tate, of Tate, Ga., in celebration of her birthday anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Steve Tate, who have spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Martin, have returned to their home in Tate.

An old-fashioned square dance Saturday evening climaxed the third annual Lake Sequoyah golf tournament held during the week-end at the Estates.

Featuring the affair was the award of the trophies to Charlie Yates, winner of the tournament; Ben Jones, of Canton, runner-up, and Billy McWilliams, of Rome, Ga., winner of the championship consolation flight. Robert Martin awarded the trophies, also presented Charlie Yates with the Colonel Sam Tate trophy for the second time. The trophy has to be won three times to be retained. Mr. Yates has won it twice and Charles Hannan, Jr., also of Atlanta, has won it once. The winner of the tournament in 1935 will become permanent owner of the handsome silver cup.

Friday afternoon of tournament week was featured by a bridge tournament at the lodge which assembled a large number of guests at the lodge and visitors.

Mrs. Charles Winship, Mrs. Lawson Thornton and Mrs. E. W. Romberger motored from Atlanta to spend Friday with Mrs. Joe Winship and were guests at the tournament. A group of Canton, Ga., players were Mrs. A. V. Jones, Mrs. Louis Jones, Miss Mary Foutte Jones and her guest, Miss Betty Anne Wright, of Rome, Ga., and Miss Blanche Jones.

Colonel and Mrs. Allen Burdett, who have spent the summer at the lodge, returned to Atlanta Monday and were accompanied by their sons, Lucien

ANN STEPS OUT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: She goes to the library where Nick Hamill, younger brother of her employer, John Hamill, head of Hamill & Harriman, advertising agents, finds her. Saying he is his friends at a hotel downtown. She goes and has a good time. All go to Nick's bachelor apartment for breakfast and he drives Ann home. Later Doug sulks and warns her against Nick. Now go on with the story.

Nick was an entertaining host. He showed her the photos of the far-away places he'd been, making amusing remarks about every picture. The servant walked noiselessly about preparing the fallow for the morning.

She wondered, sitting so cozily beside him, what it would be like to be married to a man like Nick Hamill, and why up to this time he had avoided marriage. His wife would have everything—position, prestige, wealth, luxurious rooms like these to live in, and—Nick, himself.

Doug's opinion of him was hard to believe. To Ann, accustomed to Doug, Nick was a polished man of the world. Yet sophisticated that he was, there was nothing bitter or cryptic about him. He was kind and amusing. "Now that we've been to Bermuda and back again by pictures," he said, "I'd like to tell you that you look quite as charming in your business dress as you look in evening clothes."—which was a great compliment to any woman. Black Ann, makes your hair even brighter than it is. And now," he said, "what about our campaign?"

"There isn't going to be any. Doug came the day after the party. We quarreled."

"How—how did you know?" She put her hand on his arm. "I didn't believe what he said about you. I didn't believe you were like that."

Nick breathed deeply. "My dear Ann, what amazing loyalty after all these years! You're a real friend. He looked away and his brown eyes were grave. You can believe it or not believe it. I've always done as I liked, and thought that the world was created for me to play with. Here of late I've been thinking that the world has been playing with me."

The servant announced dinner. Ann, in her plain black dress with only white organdy collar and cuffs to relieve its drabness, felt as though she were a pauper at the prince's board. Nothing was lacking in perfection and elegance!

"It's been a long time since a woman looked at me across this table. Most of the time brother John dines with me."

Ann put her fork on her plate. "I heard about your warner."

"Is that all you heard?"

"I was when, then?"

"Of course. I asked John why he didn't give you a chance. Seriously, Ann, money is nice to have and a working girl's only chance for money is to marry her boss—unless he's already happened to be married? No finer man lives than John. He wants a wife—needs one."

"But, Nick, I hardly know him. I couldn't deliberately throw myself in his way. And besides," she lowered her lashes, "I don't know him."

"I'm sorry. I hadn't really thought of that. Love is important to a girl like you."

She nodded. "The most important thing in the world. I'd do anything for the love of a man. He wouldn't have to be rich. He wouldn't have to be anything but the man I loved."

"Good girl," said Nick.

They sat at opposite ends of the long dining room table. Over Ann stretched out her slim legs and rested her trim little feet on a footstool. Nick, who looked like a Viking giant against the rich, dark background of the room, smoked thoughtfully.

Ann was strangely impressed. Was she growing up to this time just a child in love with a schoolboy sweet-heart—blindly in love? Much as the thought of Doug hurt her, a remnant of the old love remained. She thought of him now and memories of pleasant things they had done together stirred afresh in her mind. A vivid memory was his return on New Year's Eve and his kiss.

"Have you seen Doug?" she asked him.

"Yes, and he avoided me."

Ann lifted her head. "Was Gail with him?"

He nodded. She looked into the fire.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A JUNGLE ADVENTURE. VII—Allen is Captured.

As Allen paddled downstream, it seemed to him a glorious adventure to be in the midst of Brazil's jungle-land. There were insects, to be sure, and they knew how to bite; but the youth forgot them in the midst of the beauty around him—the gently-flowing stream with clear water, the vines, flowering plants and trees lining each river bank, and the hundreds of bright-colored birds which flew about.

When the landing was made, an Indian seized each by the arm, and he was led toward their village. How he wished that he could find some way to let his friends know of his danger! Having fallen into danger, he could see no way out—unless by using his wits he could make these men let him go.

Brannen-Sibley Wedding Plans Are Announced

Of important social interest is the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Evelyn Marguerite Brannen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ewell Brannen, and William Franklin Sibley Jr., of Griffin, the marriage to be solemnized at the home of the bride-elect's parents on Boulder Crest drive, on Saturday evening, September 8, at 7 o'clock, with Dr. Louie D. Newton officiating.

Miss Ruth Lenore Brannen, only sister of the bride, will be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include Misses Margaret Stott, Irene Brewer and Marguerite Rhodes, all of Atlanta. The junior bridesmaids will be Misses Evelyn Brannen and Kathleen Brannen, of College Park. Little Miss Ellen Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carroll, will be flower girl, and Master Donald Albert Brannen, small brother of the bride, will be ring bearer. The groomsmen will include Nat de Jarnette, Ed Benson, of Atlanta, and Fred Thompson, of Wilmington, Del. Acting as best man will be Jeff Henry, of Birmingham, Ala. The bride-to-be will be given in marriage by her father, Jesse Ewell Brannen.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Brannen, the bride-elect's parents, will entertain at a reception. Following the wedding party, Miss Sibley and her bride will be at home on Collier road.

The betrothal of Miss Brannen and Mr. Sibley was announced by the former's parents several weeks ago. Prior to the wedding a number of informal social parties will be given for the bride-elect.

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

A Gambit.

A man with a hundred dollars in the bank and with a premonition that the bank is about to fail is strongly tempted to draw his money out immediately. If enough people have the same premonition and act accordingly, the bank is quite likely to do what is expected of it. In bridge, a player defending against a trump contract and holding the ace of a side suit in which the dummy has a singleton, is tempted to play it on the first round, and though this is the correct play in a great majority of cases, there are some situations in which, like a run on the bank, it results in bringing about exactly what is feared.

On today's hand the East player found the only method of defeating the opponents' contract in deliberately sacrificing a trick by not going up with an ace. The sacrificing of this trick eventually enabled the defensive team to win two other tricks which they would not have won had they grabbed the first one. This deliberate immediate sacrifice, with future profit in view, is equivalent to a gambit in chess.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

Pass Pass

1—Slightly optimistic. However, North has given a free raise and South accordingly decides to show his slight additional strength.
2—Another slight overbid. North has previously given a free raise and just barely has it. Conservative tactics would suggest the expediency of a pass.

Having no way of knowing his opponents' exact holding, West decided to make an innocuous opening as possible and chose the line of clubs, the highest of his partner's suit. The singleton, of course, was played from dummy, and East fought down the natural impulse to play his ace until he had stopped to analyze the situation. From the bidding he knew that the declarer could not have more than two hearts and accordingly the only hope of defeating the contract lay in taking two tricks in the diamond suit. He realized from his partner's opening lead that South must have held at least one. Accordingly he led a diamond. He was played to the first trick, two clubs would be set up in the South hand and these cards would provide discards for dummy's two low diamonds. With this occurring there would be no way of defeating the contract. East therefore decided not to go up with the ace of clubs, but to let his partner's nine ride. He realized that if he did this he would never be able to win a club trick. However, he further knew that South would never be able to set up his club suit without a diamond queen, the East and West partnership would probably take two diamond tricks.

Obviously, everything turned out exactly as East had figured. South was unable to avoid the loss of two diamond tricks and two heart tricks, and East's correctly conceived hold-up brought about the defeat of the contract. It is equally obvious that had East gone up with the club ace, no subsequent line of defense could have stopped the eventual diamond discards and cross-ruff, and the contract would have been fulfilled.

NANCY PAGE

This Maltese Cross Is Patriotic and Historical.

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Maltese Cross

The mail brought Nancy a small old time patch work block, in the center which came with it the donor, Mrs. L. M. Waite, of Lanesboro, Mass., said: "The block I am sending you is called the Maltese Cross. It was made 50 years ago by my father, who was a Civil War veteran. He lost an arm in the war." She did not say, but Nancy read between the lines, that the loss of his arm had not meant the loss of his courage or grit.

The block has a center of red. Extending from it are blocks of white that taper to a point and blocks of blue with a base wide enough to fit on the sides of the center red square.

As Nancy studied the block she wondered why she could not design a quilt that used the idea but alternated the colors.

She used the red for the center in every case, but in one block the original blue wedges changed to white ones and the white pointed pieces changed to blue.

The Nancy Page quilt club members studied the design and pronounced it good.

As Nancy designed the quilt she thought of four of these five-inch blocks being combined into one 10-inch square patch. Then this square could be set together in an all-over pattern or the 10-inch blocks of patchwork could not be alternated with 10-inch blocks of plain white or sprigged red and white print. Or the 10-inch blocks could be set together with sashing. The possibilities are many.

The club members clipped the picture and directions from the paper and pasted it in their Nancy scrapbook. Then they sent for the sheet with the cutting pattern.

When they had this they studied it and found that Nancy had based the number of pieces required upon the 10-inch square block which had four of the 5-inch pieced blocks in its makeup.

The cutting pieces make no allowance for seams. Nancy suggests that each piece be cut one-quarter inch larger on all sides. Then this amount is taken up in the sewing. The stitching starts and ends one-quarter inch from raw edges and from ends. This allows the quilt maker to press the seams open and flat.

This pattern with its red and white and blue makes a nice quilt for an early American room.

Bryan-Ansley Plans Are of Wide Social Importance

Of wide social importance is the announcement of the wedding plans of Miss Florence Bryan and Bonneau Ansley, which will be a brilliant event of Tuesday evening, October 2, at the St. Luke's Episcopal church, with the Rev. John Moore Walker officiating.

Miss Mary Bryan, the bride-elect's sister, will be maid of honor, and another sister, Mrs. Colquhoun Carter Jr., will act as matron of honor. The bridesmaids will include Misses Julie McClatchey, Frances Haven, Lundy Sharp, Anne Scott Harman and Mary Cobb Erwin, of Athens.

Branch McKinley will attend Mr. Ansley as best man, and the groomsmen will include Colquhoun Carter, Carroll Lester, Thomas Arnold, Thomas Gerdinge, George Conner and Lamar Ellis.

Acting as ushers for the auspicious occasion will be Aquilla J. Orme, Hamilton Ansley, Malcom Curtis, Joseph Brown and Shellman Boston.

The ceremony will be followed by a reception at which the bride-elect's parents, Judge and Mrs. Shady Bryan, will entertain at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mrs. A. W. Crabbe
Is Honor Guest.

Mrs. A. W. Crabbe is being entertained at a number of informal social affairs prior to her departure, the last of this week, for Columbus, Ohio, to make her home. An event in her honor was the tea given last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. A. Long, on St. Charles place, by a group of her close friends and associates.

The hostesses for this occasion were Mesdames J. D. Thomas, W. C. Hodnett, J. J. Prendergast, C. A. Moyer, R. A. Long and W. D. Kirby. Punch was served by Miss Lillian Lee, daughter of Mrs. R. A. Long.

During calling hours a musical program was rendered by Mrs. Lee Harvey Smith, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Macon Lowance. Mrs. Smith, a gifted singer and a life-long friend of the honor guest, is being cordially received in her home city after an absence of several years. Seventy-five friends of the honor guest called.

Mrs. Crabbe has been prominently identified with social, religious and civic affairs in the city. She was elected president of Boys' High P. T. A. for the coming year, and her resignation, on account of her departure from the city, was accepted with regret. She has served capably in many capacities of parent-teacher work at Boys' High, O'Keefe and the Atlanta P. T. A. Council; also, in being an active interest in the Camp Fire Girls and welfare work.

Harwell-Leavitt Wedding Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Grieve Ridley Harwell announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruby Elizabeth Harwell, to Frank Allen Leavitt, of Gardner, Mass., the ceremony having been solemnized on August 23, Dr. R. L. Russell performing the marriage service in the presence of the immediate family and a few close friends.

Mrs. Leavitt is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harwell, her only sister, being Miss Venetia Harwell. Mr. Leavitt is division office and credit manager of the southeastern branch of the Florence Stove Company.

Mr. Leavitt and his bride will leave September 15 for a trip through Washington, New York and the New England states. After October they will be at home at 751 Cumberland road, N. E.

Little Elaine Courts Is Honor Guest.

Mrs. William Parker Jr. entertained 24 guests at a party on Saturday afternoon at her home on Brighton road in Brookwood Hills, in honor of her little niece, Elaine Courts, the occasion celebrating the second birthday anniversary of the little girl. Yellow toy wagons, filled with pastel-shaded lollipops, adorned the center of the two tables covered with green cloths, which were placed in the garden of the hostess.

In another part of the garden a booth was erected in which were placed noise makers, a grab bag and toy balloons. Celluloid toys were hidden in the velvety grass to be found by the delighted little children, which added greatly to their pleasure and amusement. Mrs. Macon Courts, mother of the honor guest, and Mrs. Vaughn Nixon, her grandmother, assisted Mrs. Parker in entertaining.

The Pansy Club.

The Pansy Sewing Club met on Tuesday with Mrs. Victor Flury and Mrs. A. A. Flury at the home of Mrs. Victor Flury, on Pearce street. The house was adorned with garden flowers. Games and contests were enjoyed and the winning prizes were Mesdames L. P. Swinney, A. A. Flury, W. O. Petty and G. R. Kimberly. Present were Mesdames W. O. Petty, G. R. Kimberly, T. G. Wooten, A. J. Schaefer, G. A. Maddox, W. J. Heio, Guy Cantrell, A. T. Peacock, L. P. Swinney, Mrs. Jess Benefield, Victor Flury and A. A. Flury. They were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Hattie Flury. The club meets in September with Mrs. L. P. Swinney.

Children's Party.

Mrs. W. H. Wiley entertained at a children's party at her home on Washington street in East Point in honor of the fourth birthday of her niece, Mary Frances Ealum, on last Thursday. The birthday cake with four candles adorned the center of the dining room. A color scheme of pink and green was used. Baskets holding mints marked the place of each guest.

Present were Dorothy McGough, Margaret Boyd, Leon Bristol, Dorothy Ponder, Margaret Strickland, Bobby Callaway, Elizabeth Cornelison and Josephine Wynne.

Witches' Club.

Witches' Club of Atlanta entertained at tea in honor of visiting members on Sunday afternoon at the Piedmont hotel, including Mrs. Kate Blake, formerly Mrs. Ed Shaft, of Atlanta, now of Chattanooga; Miss Caroline Phillips and Miss Ramona Fowler, both of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Those present were Misses Bess Wheeler, Claudette Suttles, Fanny Mannus, Judy Mobly, Linda Watkins, Winnie Grubbs, Martha Baldwin, Ruth Schaefer, Louise Watkins, Lucy Thompson and Gabriella Winus.

Quilt Design may be obtained by sending 3 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution. Back patterns may be secured by sending an additional 5 cents.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—

The stock market yielded some of its gains of last week in a moderate decline today.

Bullish traders continued to feel their way along cautiously in all markets. Reactionary tendencies embraced leading commodities but the dollar rallied and bonds about held their own.

The railroads application for higher freight rates, a further decline in steel operations and the widening scope of the threatened textile strike contributed to the hesitant mood displayed in speculative quarters.

Decreased demand rather than any important selling, however, lowered stock prices. Volume dwindled to 534,200 shares compared with 746,700 Friday. The Standard Statistics Company average for 30 stocks dropped 1.2 points to 21.36 after moving up more than 4 points last week.

Rails, leaders of the upswing last week, sold off as Wall Street digested the plea of the carriers for increased rates to absorb mounting costs. Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville and Nashville, Northern Pacific and Union Pacific retreated 1 to 2 points.

Steel shares gave ground grudgingly in face of production estimates that were the lowest since the bankruptcy of the industry in March, 1933.

The American Iron and Steel Institute estimated output this week at 19.1 per cent of capacity against 21.3 per cent a week ago, a new low since March, 1933.

American Rolling Mill, Bethlehem, Republic Steel and United States Steel common lost 1 to 2 points.

Inflationary sentiment continued to fade as the dollar rose against foreign exchanges.

Asile from Hong, which attained a top of $7.75 a hundredweight, leading commodities moved lower. Wheat sold 1 1/2 to 2-1/8 cents a bushel.

The business horizon was still bare of seasonal expansion evidence, although week-end trade reports encouraged all hopes.

The dollar rose to a point against European gold currencies that made further exports of the yellow metal unprofitable.

DAILY SHORT STORY
TITO'S TRYST

Mr. Gunther Could Hardly Believe His Eyes, But There Stood His Dog and With Him a Friend.

BY ELEANOR BLAKE.

For three months, now, Mr. Gunther had reached for his hat at the end of every working day with a sense of anticipation. For three months until tonight. Tonight the long, hot ride home on the street car would seem hotter and longer, the walk down the shady street afterward a cool relief, true enough, but with a melancholy in the very shade, the dinner that would be waiting for him a good dinner, but unshared with Tito. No—Tito was gone. Tito wouldn't be there.

Mr. Gunther shook himself, irritated, told himself he must snap out of it—pull himself together. It was nothing sort of childish for a man chewed up slippers, begged at the table—barked. Yes, barked! And in a way that had annoyed the neighbors. No, Mr. Gunther didn't blame his wife a bit for insisting, all last week, that Tito must go.

"You can find a good home for him, of 40 to have allowed to grow in his heart an affection so strong and warm for a little dog. Not even any particular kind of a dog—just a little brown fellow with a curly coat and long, silken ears and clear eyes that had fixed themselves on those of his master with steadfast devotion.

Besides, Agnes had been right about it. Tito had brought in dirt—thick on his paws, tracking up the carpet he'd saved so long to buy; he'd Charlie. There's plenty of people would be glad to have him—people who don't live in an apartment. How about that Mr. Kennedy down at your office? Didn't he say he'd like a dog? Didn't he say he'd like Tito? Well, then...

Now, while Mr. Gunther's heart was warm with affection for his dog, it was warmer with affection for his wife. And, in any case, he was more desirous of peace than possession. Since Agnes had decided to make an issue of it—since the presence of Tito was actually threatening the even tenor of domestic ways—well, Tito must leave.

Down at the office Charles Gunther had taken up the subject of Tito with the Kennedy and the Kennedy had been—in his own phrasing—"pleased as Punch."

"Sure!" Kennedy had said. "I'm out on the road a lot, Gunther, and the Missus gets kind of nervous sometimes being in the house alone at night. Now, with a dog like that—you say he'll bark? That'll be just dandy. You bring him over any time—right away. How about tonight, Gunther?"

"Not—not tonight," Charles Gunther had managed to stammer out. "Tomorrow night all right with you? I ought to fix him up a little—give him a bath."

But "tomorrow night" had come as inexorably as "tonight." And when dinner was over and the dishes cleared and washed and put away Mr. Gunther had descended the three flights of stairs that led from his little apartment to the street. Tito was on a leash and Agnes walked beside him. Yes, she'd gone along to make sure Tito would have a good home.

"You know, Charles," Agnes had said while they strolled together in the cool of the summer evening down the street of the shaded apartment building like their own and at last past rows of little houses where men in shirtsleeves watered their own front lawns, talked to their children, played with their dogs, "you know I like Tito, too." Her voice choked a little. Charles Gunther looked up into her face quickly, hopefully, and then away again. No—Agnes' lips were set in a firm line beneath her eyes that were softening to tears. "But he's such a nuisance and, besides, the neighbors..."

Walking home with Agnes beside him, Mr. Gunther thought of Tito—left behind—held in the Kennedy's arms. Tito's tail wagging his doubts questioning. Thought of his thick, brown coat, his silky ears, his warm, welcoming, eager glance. Charles Gunther sighed again, as, the next night.

Gunther could think of nothing to say. His mind was full of Tito. But this was nonsense. He was acting like a boy—not like a man grown. He looked up at his wife. Pleasant and charming she was under the yellow glow of the light that hung above the table. But what was that? Were those tears at the edge of her eyes? Yes, surely, and her lips were quivering.

"Charles, I—I—do you think the Kennedy would let us have Tito back? You miss him so—and I—I do, too, Charles..."

There was a scratching and a whining at the door—a sniffing and a sharp bark. Charles Gunther flung his napkin on the floor and rushed to the screen. Yes, there was Tito—a Tito dusty and panting, lifting gingerly the furry paws that were sore from padding floors of unaccustomed pavement—a Tito pleading but triumphant.

And now Agnes was on her feet, too, had rushed to the door, the tears that had risen to her eyes beginning to overflow.

"Why, Charles!" she cried. "He's come home all this way alone!" Her words ended abruptly; her voice ceased.

on a note of question and dismay. For there, outside the screen,
